

Contents

v | Foreword

IX | Annette Gerok-Reiter, Stefanie Gropper, Anna Pawlak, Anja Wolkenhauer, Angelika Zirker
Introduction

I. Multiple Authorship as Reciprocal Creativity

3 | Annette Gerok-Reiter
Multiple Authorship in The Flowing Light of the Godhead?
Canonizations – Deconstructions – Aesthetic Structure

31 | Matthias Bauer, Sarah Briest, Sara Rogalski, Angelika Zirker
Give and Take. Reflections on Collaborative Authorship in Early Modern English Literature

II. Explicit References to Multiple Authorship

53 | Frank Bezner
E pluribus unum? On the Aesthetics of Latin-German Poetry in the Carmina Burana

77 | Dirk Werle
Multiple Authorship in 17th-Century German Lyric Poetry – the Example of Constantin Christian Dedekind's Aelbianische Musen-Lust (1657)

95 | Mara R. Wade
Martin Opitz signs a Stammbuch. Multiple Authorship and a 'Different Aesthetics' in the Emblematic album amicorum

- 121 | Andrea Worm
Multiple Authorship and Diachronic Hybridity. The Seven-branched Candelabrum of Brunswick Cathedral and its Historical Reconfiguration

III. Multiple Authorship in the Interaction of Production and Perception

- 159 | Konrad Schmid
The Torah as Multi-Authorial Literature of Discussion. The History, Aesthetics, and Hermeneutics of a Product of Collaborative Writing
- 181 | Lorenz Adamer
Reflections on the Concept of Authorship in Musicians' Motets
- 199 | Katharina Ost
Goltzius and Estius Read Ovid: Pygmalion and Galatea (1593)

IV. Co-Creativity in the Interplay of the Individual and the Collective

- 229 | Stefanie Gropper
'Ek segi,' 'vér segjum,' 'verður sagt.' Multiple Authorship in the Íslendingasögur
- 253 | Lena Rohrbach
'Different from all other Egils sagas.' On the Connection between Individual Authorship and a Different Aesthetics in Late Premodern Iceland
- 275 | Martin Baisch
Reproductive Authorship in the Courtly Novel
- 305 | Kärin Nickelsen
Artwork, Craftwork, Science – and Who Is the Author?
The Case of 18th-Century Botanical Illustrations
- 333 | Figures and Charts
- 337 | Index