

Contents

Alexios Stamatiadis-Bréhier

Introduction: From Social Movements to Philosophy (and Back Again) — 1

Section 1: At the Intersection Between Academia and Social Movements

Kevin Richardson

Critical Social Ontology and Social Movements — 13

Linda Martín Alcoff

Social Movements and Epistemic Injustice — 35

Vasiliki Polykarpou

Feminist Research as a Response to Political and Epistemic Violences — 45

Section 2: Contemporary Approaches to the Philosophy of Social Movements

Social Ontology and Social Movements

Katrina Haaksma

Toward a Liberatory Metaphysics of Sexuality — 59

Ervin Kondakciu

The Political Ontology of Rawls' Model of Disobedience: Depoliticization Through Moralization — 77

Social Movements and Epistemology

Sena Bölek

How Social Movements Bear Collective Duties — 103

James Gullledge

How Politics Shapes the Value of Perceptual Experience: From Epistemic to Prudential Value — 121

Yorgos Karagiannopoulos

The Standpoint of the Oppressed Must Be Conquered by the Oppressed Class Itself: Standpoint Epistemology and Epistemic Autonomy — 143

Section 3: How Specific Social Movements Inform Philosophy

Lukas Slothuus

Climate Social Movements and the Politics of Leadership — 1

Loki Chan

Viral Social Movements, State(s) of Emergency, and the Insurgent Public Realm: A Philosophical Analysis of China's 2020–2022 Social Movements — 187

Luke Beesley

Anchoring Disablement: Social Definitions and Social Ontology in Britain's Disabled People's Movement — 207

Stella Christou

European Health Social Movements: An Introduction — 229

List of Contributors — 251

Index — 253