

Contents

Preface — VII

List of Tables and Figures — XV

List of Abbreviations — XVII

1 Contextualizing Luke's Compositional Use of Mark — 1

- 1.1 Introduction — 1
- 1.2 Previous Comparative Approaches to Gospel Composition — 11
  - 1.2.1 The Gospels and Greco-Roman Compositions — 11
  - 1.2.2 From Gospels as Midrash to the Gospels as Rewritten Scripture — 19
- 1.3 Rewritten Scriptural Narratives as a Comparative Lens for Understanding Luke's Rewriting of Mark — 29
- 1.4 Overview — 32

2 Redefining Rewritten Scripture — 34

- 2.1 Introduction: Terminology and Summary — 34
- 2.2 The Debate over Rewritten Scripture — 39
  - 2.2.1 Geza Vermes and the Genesis of "Rewritten Bible" — 39
  - 2.2.2 Broadening the Category: Rewritten Scripture as a Textual Process or Strategy — 44
  - 2.2.3 Toward a More Precise Definition: Rewritten Scripture as a "Genre" — 50
  - 2.2.4 Challenges to "Rewritten Bible" and Rewritten Scripture — 65
  - 2.2.5 Exegetical Function: Rewritten Scripture and Early Jewish Scriptural Interpretation — 67
  - 2.2.6 Summary: Main Lines of Consensus and Outstanding Questions — 74
- 2.3 Defining Rewritten Scripture: Composition, Form, and Function — 75
  - 2.3.1 Composition — 76
  - 2.3.2 Form — 78
  - 2.3.3 Function — 80
  - 2.3.4 Definition and Terminology — 83
- 2.4 Conclusion — 84

3	The Book of Jubilees: Rewriting Scripture in Hebrew — 86
3.1	Introduction to the Book of Jubilees — 87
3.2	Overview and Outline — 90
3.3	Jubilees as Rewritten Scripture: Interpreting the Mosaic Torah — 93
3.3.1	Jubilees' Relationship to Other Texts — 93
3.3.2	The Overall Interpretive Character of Jubilees: Macrostructural Rewriting — 98
3.3.3	Micro-Level Rewriting in Jubilees: Exegetical Paraphrase, Abbreviation, Expansion, and Omission — 124
3.4	Summary: The Interpretive Profile of Jubilees — 140
4	Josephus, Jewish Antiquities: Rewriting Scripture in Greek — 143
4.1	Introduction to Josephus and the Jewish Antiquities — 144
4.1.1	The Context of the Jewish Antiquities in the Life and Career of Josephus — 145
4.1.2	The Claims of the Preface to the Antiquities (1.1–26) — 148
4.1.3	The Aims and Audience(s) of the Jewish Antiquities — 157
4.2	The Jewish Antiquities as Rewritten Scripture — 159
4.3	Macro-Level Rewriting in the Antiquities — 163
4.3.1	The Structure of the Antiquities as a Whole — 163
4.3.2	Macro-Level Rewriting of Genesis in Antiquities 1 — 167
4.4	Micro-Level Rewriting in Antiquities 1 — 184
4.4.1	The Conclusion and Aftermath of the Flood (A.J. 1.89–103) — 184
4.4.2	Summary of Josephus's Micro-Rewriting Techniques — 193
4.5	Conclusion: The Aims of Josephus's Rewritten Scripture — 200
5	Luke's Rewritten Gospel — 204
5.1	The Gospel according to Luke: Introductory Questions — 205
5.2	The Gospel of Luke in the Environment of Early Jewish and Christian Literature — 210
5.2.1	Luke, Scripture, and Early Jewish Interpretation — 211
5.2.2	Luke's Gospel Predecessors and the Claims of the Preface (Luke 1:1–4) — 217
5.3	Luke's Rewriting of Mark Compared with Rewritten Scripture — 222
5.3.1	Macrostructural Rewriting — 223
5.3.2	Micro-Level Rewriting — 257
5.3.3	Luke's Micro-Rewriting Techniques Compared with Rewritten Scripture — 277
5.4	Chapter Conclusions — 279

6        Conclusions: Rewritten Scripture and Rewritten Gospel — 281

6.1        Argument — 281

6.2        Results and Prospects — 284

Bibliography — 289

Ancient Sources Index — 305

Subject Index — 331

