

Preface and acknowledgments

This volume and the next two tomes of Ancient Greek Purism are part of the series Purism in Antiquity, one of the outcomes of the ERC project PURism in Antiquity: Theories of Language in Greek Atticist Lexica and their Legacy (PURA), which has received funding from the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme (grant agreement no. 865817). Chapter 5 was jointly produced with the ATLAS project, which has received funding from the European Commission – Next Generation EU and Compagnia di San Paolo.

We wish to thank all the institutions and people who have collaborated in this project and helped the authors of the volume in several ways. Our first heartfelt thanks are for Giuseppe Ucciardello, who kindly accompanied us through the initial stages of the project and could not be part of the final volume for reasons of force majeure. We particularly wish to thank him for his insights into Sections 4.1 and 4.2 of Chapter 1 and for his unstinting advice on Chapter 7, Sections 4–6. We also wish to thank Emanuele Dettori for his notes on previous drafts of this volume and his unfailing support throughout. Albio Cassio has equally provided insightful comments and saved us from many blunders. The PURA research team (Roberto Batisti, Federica Benuzzi, Jacopo Cavarzeran, Giulia Gerbi, Elisa Nuria Merisio, and Andrea Pellettieri) have discussed several of the Atticist material commented in this volume with Federico Favi and Olga Tribulato: their expertise in all things Atticist is testified by the number of lexicographical entries from PURA's Digital Encyclopedia of Atticism (DEA: www.atticism.eu). Chiara Monaco has kindly shared unpublished work of hers with us. Carlo Vessella at De Gruyter has enthusiastically supported the project of the Purism in Antiquity series since its inception and together with his production team has overviewed its complicated completion. Crucial administrative support was provided by the staff of the Department of Humanities of Ca' Foscari University of Venice, PURA's host institution: we particularly wish to thank Elena Scanu (PURA's project manager), Francesco Negri, Sara Furlan, and Massimiliano Costantini.

Our friends and families have provided material help and emotional support and it is a pleasure to take this chance to thank Stefania De Vido, Arturo Knipe, Sergio Knipe, Chiara Maragna, and Thomas Pois here.

The volume is the result of the joint efforts of the three authors, who have discussed all its contents together and shared the editorial work on it. For research assessment purposes, the detailed authorship of each part of the volume is as follows: Chapters 1, 2, and 3 are by Olga Tribulato; Chapters 4 and 5 are by Federico Favi; Chapters 6 and 7 are by Lucia Prauscello.
