

Acknowledgements

This volume derives in proximate form from a conference on “Mixed Feelings: The Phenomenology of Mixed Affect in Philosophy, Literature, and Historiography” held at the Technische Universität, Dresden, on 6–8 June 2023. The conference itself was funded by the award of an Anneliese Maier-Forschungspreis by the Alexander von Humboldt Stiftung, for whose support throughout the six years of the award Douglas Cairns is immensely grateful. By a happy constellation of circumstances, the conference and volume were able to draw on the work done by Pia Campeggiani, Valentina Petrolini, Marco Viola, and Luca Cecchetti under the aegis of the PRIN 2022 project, “Bittersweet, Ancient and Modern: Mixed Affect in Emotional Experience from Plato to Brain Imaging”. For their help in organising the Dresden conference, the editors would like to thank Antje Junghanß and Bernhard Kaiser. For their role in hosting the Maier Prize project and supporting its events we are most grateful to Dennis Pausch (now Marburg) and Mario Baumann. On a more personal level, we are enormously grateful to all our friends in Dresden — Fritz-Heiner and Hanna Mutschler and Christoph Lundgreen, as well as the aforementioned Antje, Bernhard, Dennis, and Mario — for making us feel so — unambivalently — welcome, on all our visits from 2016 to the present.
