

Contents

Acknowledgments — VII

Foreword — XIII

Magdalena Szczyrbak

Introduction: More than (just) words — 1

Part I: (Just) words

Legal perspectives

Krisda Chaemsaitong

Chapter 1

Metalanguage in the penalty phase of a capital trial: A study of two monologic genres — 27

Karen Tracy

Chapter 2

Political discrimination or reasonable conduct? Motive-implicative discourse moves in a civil trial's closing arguments — 49

Joacim Lindh

Chapter 3

Legal-lay interaction and recontextualization in Swedish criminal proceedings — 73

Non-legal perspectives

Magdalena Szczyrbak

Chapter 4

. . .and I'm telling you honestly, I don't measure: Emotive reframing and evasiveness in expert testimony — 99

Rukiya Stein

Chapter 5

Navigating the linguistic complexity of cross-examination: The role of the witness intermediary for an autistic defendant — 127

Paolo Greco

Chapter 6

Between semantics and pragmatics: Witnesses' credibility and the linguistic expression of the source of information in Italian criminal trials — 149

Foluke Olayinka Unuabonah

Chapter 7

Identity construction in complainants' narratives in the investigative public hearings on the Nigerian Federal Capital Territory administration — 185

Part II: More than (just) words

Speech and gesture

Gregory Matoesian

Chapter 8

I wanna be somebody*: Enacted reported thought in an actual jury deliberation — 213

Chuanyou Yuan, Huishu Cao

Chapter 9

Multimodal discursive authority of the judge: Analyzing the judge's interactions with courtroom participants in Chinese criminal trials — 231

Image and architecture

Valérie Hayaert

Chapter 10

Allegories of justice in contemporary France: In search of a new paradigm — 267

Shailesh Kumar

Chapter 11

Criminal law, court architecture, and the space of justice: Stakeholder perceptions of ‘special’ courts used in child sexual abuse trials in India — 293

Index — 319

