

Contents

Acknowledgements — V

Abbreviations — IX

List of Illustrations — XI

Stephan Jaeger

Introduction: Between Curation and Scholarly Analysis – the Holocaust Galleries as a Case Study for Holocaust Representation in the Museum — 1

Part I: Conception & Design

James Bulgin

“Not a Book on the Wall”: Conception and Design of the Holocaust Galleries — 21

Clare Lawlor

Conception, Design, Interpretation: The Holocaust Learning Programme at the Imperial War Museum London — 157

Rabbi Nicky Liss

Experiences as Rabbinic Advisor to the Imperial War Museum when Creating the Holocaust Galleries — 183

Tim Locke

Opening a Door into History: Artefacts that Revealed my Family’s Past and the Imperial War Museum — 191

Part II: Conversation

James Bulgin, Suzanne Bardgett, Stephan Jaeger

Narrating the Holocaust in the New Holocaust Galleries of the Imperial War Museum London: James Bulgin and Suzanne Bardgett in Conversation with Stephan Jaeger — 203

Part III: Interpretation

Andy Pearce

A New Schema for Cultural Memory: The Holocaust Galleries — 289

Bryce Lease

Shifting Theatricalities in the Holocaust Galleries — 311

Stephan Jaeger

Holocaust Representation in the Museum in Experiential Structures:
Between History and Meta-Reflexive Narrative Form — 323

Hannah Holtschneider

Engaging Agency during Genocide: A Close Reading of the Sections “Massacre” and “Killing Centres” in the Holocaust Galleries — 347

Diana I. Popescu

Visitor Engagement with the Holocaust Galleries — 367

Magdalena Saryusz-Wolska

“The Walls Are where They Are”: An Infrastructural Approach to the Holocaust Galleries — 395

Notes on Contributors — 415

Index — 419