

Contents

Preface — IX

Abbreviations — XXIII

Part I: Preliminaries

Chapter 1

Introduction — 3

- 1 First thoughts and concerns — 3
- 2 Pol. 7.8–9: a case study — 15
- 3 First conclusions — 33

Chapter 2

Critical Prolegomena — 39

- 1 Aristotle's political theory – what is the matter? — 39
- 2 Do the political concepts expressed in Nic. Eth. 1.1 fit the political theory of Pol.? — 43
- 3 The two works Nic. Eth. and Pol. The limited relevance of the political knowledge (politikē) in Nic. Eth. and Pol. — 50

Part II: The Notions of Political Knowledge or Ability (politikē) in Nic. Eth. 1.1

Chapter 3

The Teleological Perspective — 63

- 1 The end of political knowledge (Nic. Eth. 1.1) – the argument: producing knowledge — 63
- 2 The interactions of producing arts in Nic. Eth. 1.1 – contrasted with the parts of the polis in Pol. — 72
- 3 “If among things realized through actions there is a specific end which we want for its own sake” (Nic. Eth. 1.1 1094a18f.) — 83
- 4 Introducing the concept of the knowledge of politikē — 87

Chapter 4

The Concept of the Knowledge of politikē — 103

- 1 The relationship between the function of arts and the realization of the supreme end accomplished through actions — 103
- 2 “The end we want for its own sake” – humans in need to be governed by politikē — 107
- 3 The Janus-like character of political knowledge (politikē) in Nic. Eth. 1.1 — 111
- 4 The absolute power of a supreme political knowledge politikē in Nic. Eth. 1.1 – an anathema by the constitutional theory of Pol. — 117

Chapter 5

The Human good — 123

- 1 The human good as the exclusive end (telos) of political knowledge politikē (Nic. Eth. 1.1 1094b6–11). The momentous departure from Plato — 123
- 2 The high ideal of the human good of the polis as end (telos) of politikē (Nic. Eth. 1.1 1094b6–11) — 128
- 3 The political investigation — 133

Chapter 6

Making Citizens Good Humans (Nic. Eth. 1.10–2.1) — 136

- 1 The effort of politikē to make citizens good as premise to develop ethical concepts — 136
- 2 Politikē in Nic. Eth. 1 – the Platonic concept and nomenclature — 139
- 3 The one and final account of moral education in Nic. Eth. 10.10 – before Pol. 8 — 144
- 4 Moving from ethical theory to the practice of making citizens good (Nic. Eth. 10.10) — 147

Chapter 7

The Household as Social Setting for Moral Education — 152

- 1 The qualification of the educator (Nic. Eth. 10.10) — 152
- 2 Legislative qualification as requirement for making one’s children good and its impact on Aristotle’s political theory — 161
- 3 Legislative qualification of the educating father – the political metaphor — 168
- 4 Towards a political concept of legislation. Lawgiving as part of political knowledge (politikē) — 171

Chapter 8The Flaws of Statesmen — 181

- 1 Politics practiced by statesmen without political knowledge and the emergence of the political profile of the lawgiver in Nic. Eth. 10.10 — 181
- 2 The political notion of the lawgiver in Nic. Eth. 10.10 — 186
- 3 People as practicing politicians and teachers of political knowledge. The specific qualification required from a legislator in Nic. Eth. 10.10 — 188

Chapter 9The Transition to Pol. in Nic. Eth. 10.10 — 198

The Prospectus of a Study of Lawgiving and Constitution in Nic. Eth. 10.10 and the Eight Books of Pol. — 198

Part III: Pol. 1.1 – 2Chapter 10*“Starting with First Things First”: Pol. 1.1. — 215

The Definition of the Polis as Community – A Platonic Start — 215

Chapter 11Theoretical Issues in Pol. 1.1 Concerning Governing; The Method Outlined — 231

- 1 The distinction between forms of rule in Pol. 1.1 versus the notion of political knowledge (politikē) of Nic. Eth. 1.1 — 231
- 2 The method proposed – the parts of the polis (Pol. 1.1 1252a17–23) — 247

Chapter 12Pol.* 1.2. First Associations. The polis. “Human Being” (anthrōpos), and the Standard of Nature — 257

- 1 The natural association of male – female — 259
- 2 The natural association of master – slave — 263
- 3 The village — 266
- 4 The polis enjoys complete self-sufficiency and exists for the sake of living well. An anachronistic misconception about Aristotle’s polis — 270

Chapter 13The polis Exists by Nature – The Human Being Belongs to the polis by Nature — 281

- 1 The new approach to explain the genesis of the village and polis — 281

- 2 The qualities of the human being who belongs by nature to the polis (physei politikōn zōion) (1253a2–7) and their opposite (apolis) — 293
- 3 The natural community (koinōnia) of humans of sharing what is just — 296

Chapter 14

The Absence of Political Thinking in Nic. Eth. — 307

- 1 Aristotle's political theory of Pol. versus politikē of Nic. Eth. 1.1 — 307
- 2 The incongruity of the accounts of political knowledge (politikē) in Nic. Eth. 1.1 and Pol. 3.12 — 327

Bibliography — 336

- 1 Greek texts — 336
- 2 Commentaries — 336
- 3 Translations — 337
- 4 Scholarly Works — 338
- 5 Lexica, Grammars — 341

Index rerum — 342

Index nominum — 344