

Acknowledgments

Writing this book has given me great pleasure. The initial impetus for this project was an academic conference organized by Sebastian Schmideler in Chemnitz in 2016, which focused on knowledge transfer in children's and young adult literature in the German Democratic Republic. Together with Bettina Kümmerling-Meibauer, I gave a lecture there on non-fiction picturebooks from the German Democratic Republic and I have been pursuing the topic ever since. At the biennial conferences of the European Network for Picturebook Research, I was able to exchange ideas with many colleagues from all over the world and learn about the current state and the future developments of picturebook research. My biggest thanks go to my dear wife, Bettina, who critically commented on a first draft of the manuscript. I would also like to thank the editor of the Interdisciplinary German Cultural Studies series, Irene Kacandes, for the great effort she put into her critical commentary and for the inclusion in this series. Many thanks are also due to Christopher Culver for reviewing and improving my English text. And last but not least, I would like to thank the excellent staff at De Gruyter Verlag. This volume is dedicated to our Berliners in Moabit and Kreuzberg: Alina, Erika, Gustav, Linnea, Max, and Merlin.
