

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgements — V

Introduction

Vera Nünning & Ansgar Nünning

Cognition and Narratives Shaping Cultures: Where Cognition, Culture, and Narratives Meet — 3

I Affordances and Limits of Narrative in Relation to Culture and Cognition

Peter Hanenberg

“[W]e can know more than we can tell”: Tacit Knowledge and Narrative — 21

Vera Nünning

How Culture, Cognition, and Narratives Mutually Shape Each Other: Navigating the Bermuda Triangle — 39

II Embodied Experiences, Culture and Narrative

Paul Sopcak

“Fictive Reality”: Constituting Self and Lifeworld Through Narrative — 63

Jens Brockmeier

Remembering in Rome: Interpretive Cognition and the Autobiographical Process — 83

Cara Vorbeck

“Remember Me”: Narratives of Collective Embodied Memory — 105

III Cultural Models and Narrative

María-Ángeles Martínez

Using Storyworld Possible Selves Theory to Explore the Narrative Negotiation of Cultural Models — 127

Deborah de Muijnck

Cultural Models of Narrative Identity as Salutogenic Sense-Making Strategies in Illness Narratives — 149

Kirsten Von Hagen

Short Forms of Narrative in the Context of the Spectacular: Re-Writing of Cultural Stereotypes and Perceptions of Alterity in the Novels of Gyp, Proust, and James — 173

IV Cultural Interpretative Frames and (Untrustworthy) Narratives

Carolin Gebauer

Framing Migration: How Narrative Shapes Cultural Views of Transnational Mobility — 193

Sjoerd-Jeroen Moenandar

The Free Frisians From the Dawn of Time Are Gonna Rock You! — 215

V Genres, Culture and Consciousness

Juan Camilo Brigard

Mythical Realism as Transcultural Genre: Berichá's Tengo los pies en la cabeza — 243

Jan Rupp

Communal Minds? Representation of Consciousness in Contemporary Fictions of the Internet — 267

Ansgar Nünning

Extending Futurability through the Imagination: Factual and Fictional Narratives as Ways of Shaping Cultures, Cognition, and Futures — 285

Notes on Contributors — 317

Index — 321

