

CONTENTS

	PAGE
EDITOR'S INTRODUCTION	3
TRANSLATOR'S PREFACE	9
FOREWORD	15
INTRODUCTION	27
1. The First Fundamental Question	27
2. The Creative Power in Man	29
3. The Meaning of "Practical" in Philosophy	32
4. The Valuational Wealth of the Real and Participation Therein	34
5. The Second Fundamental Question	36
6. The Valuational Constituents of Persons and Situations	39
7. Passing by on the Other Side	41
8. The Modern Man	44

PART I

THE STRUCTURE OF THE ETHICAL PHENOMENON

(PHENOMENOLOGY OF MORALS)

SECTION I

CONTEMPLATIVE AND NORMATIVE ETHICS

CHAPTER
I.	THE COMPETENCY OF PRACTICAL PHILOSOPHY	49
	(a) Moral Commandments, the General Type, their Claim to Acceptation	49
	(b) Ethical Relativism	51
	(c) Ethical Absolutism	52
II.	CAN VIRTUE BE TAUGHT?	54
	(a) The Proposition of Socrates	54
	(b) The Christian Conception of "Sin"	55
	(c) Schopenhauer's Purely Theoretical Ethics	56
	(d) Plato's Meno and the Solution of the Difficulty	58

CHAPTER	PAGE
III. THE RIGHT MEANING OF THE NORMATIVE	62
(a) The Indirectly Normative	62
(b) The Visible Field and the Idea of Ethics	64
(c) Ethics and Pedagogy	65
(d) Theoretical and Ethical Apriorism	66

SECTION II

THE PLURALITY OF MORALS AND UNITY OF ETHICS

IV. MULTIPLICITY AND UNITY IN MORAL CONSCIOUSNESS	73
(a) The Historical Multiplicity of Moral Commandments	73
(b) Current Morality and Pure Ethics	74
(c) Further Dimensions of the Manifold	77
(d) The Unity Sought For and the Investigation of Values	78
V. THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOOD AND EVIL	81
(a) Commandments, Ends and Values	81
(b) The Myth of the Tree of Knowledge	82
(c) Nietzsche's Discovery and the Discoverer's Error	84
VI. THE PATHWAY TO THE DISCOVERY OF VALUES	87
(a) Revolution of the Ethos and the Narrowness of the Sense of Value	87
(b) The Champion of Ideas and the Crowd	89
(c) Backward - looking and Forward - looking Ethics	93
(d) Theoretical and Ethical Investigation of Principles	95
(e) Categories and Values, Laws and Commandments	98
(f) Ethical Actuality and the Fact of the Primary Consciousness of Value	99
(g) The Possibility of Illusion and of a Spurious Moral Consciousness	102
VII. THE VARIOUS DOMAINS OF THE MORAL PHENOMENON	105
(a) The Scope of the Given in the Investigation of Values	105

CONTENTS		21
CHAPTER		PAGE
	(b) Law and Ethics	107
	(c) Religion and Mythology	110
	(d) Psychology, Pedagogy, Politics, History, Art and Artistic Education	112

SECTION III

FALSE METHODS OF PHILOSOPHICAL ETHICS

WIII.	EGOISM AND ALTRUISM	119
	(a) Self-Preservation and Self-Assertion	119
	(b) The Truth and Falsehood of the Egoistic Theory	120
	(c) The Metaphysic of Altruism	122
	(d) Self-Appraisalment through the Appraisalment of Others	125
	(e) The Fundamental Relationship of "I" and "Thou," their Conflict and Value	127
IX.	EUDÆMONISM AND UTILITARIANISM	131
	(a) Aristippus and Epicurus	131
	(b) The Stoic View	133
	(c) Christianity and Neo-Platonism	134
	(d) The Social Eudæmonism of Modern Times	137
X.	CRITICISM AND THE ETHICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF EU- DÆMONISM	140
	(a) The Natural Limit of Utilitarianism	140
	(b) The Right and the Limit of the Ethics of Consequences	141
	(c) The Reappearance of Suppressed Values	143
	(d) The Valuational Illusion in Social Eudæ- monism and its Danger	144
	(e) The Inherent Value of Happiness and its Relation to the Moral Values Proper	146
	(f) Striving for Happiness and Capacity for Happiness	149

SECTION IV

THE KANTIAN ETHICS

XI.	THE SUBJECTIVISM OF THE PRACTICAL REASON	155
	(a) Kant's Doctrine of the "Subjective" Origin of the Ought	155

CHAPTER		PAGE
	(b) Transcendental Subjectivism and the Freedom of the Will	158
	(c) The Kantian Alternative	160
	(d) The False Inference in the Kantian Apriorism	161
XII.	CRITIQUE OF FORMALISM	166
	(a) The Meaning of the "Formal" in the Categorical Imperative	166
	(b) The Historical Prejudice in Favour of "Form"	167
	(c) Formalism and Apriorism	169
XIII.	CRITIQUE OF INTELLECTUALISM	171
	(a) Intellectualism and Apriorism	171
	(b) Sense-Perception, Objectivity and Apriority	172
	(c) Thought, Understanding and Apriority	174
	(d) The Emotional Apriorism of the Sense of Value	176
	(e) The Idea of a "Material Ethics of Values"	179

SECTION V

THE ESSENCE OF ETHICAL VALUES

XIV.	VALUES AS ESSENCES	183
	(a) Preliminary Consideration of Essence	183
	(b) Goods and their Values	186
	(c) Valuational Apriority and Absoluteness	189
	(d) Will, End and the Moral Judgment of Values	192
	(e) Example and Imitation	194
	(f) Ethical Idealization and Valuational Consciousness	197
	(g) Accountability, Responsibility, and the Consciousness of Guilt	198
	(h) Conscience and the Ethical a Priori	200
	(i) The Ancient Concept of Virtue as a Concrete Concept of Value	202
XV.	THE RELATIVITY AND ABSOLUTENESS OF VALUES	206
	(a) Subjectivity and Relativity	206
	(b) The Relativity of Goods to the Subject and the Relational Structure of Concrete Values	207

CONTENTS		23
CHAPTER		PAGE
	(c) The Absoluteness of Moral Values and the Relativity of the Dependent Values of Goods	210
	(d) The Material Relation of Moral Values to Persons as Objects	212
	(e) The Material Relation of Moral Values to the Person as a Subject	213
	(f) The Interpenetration of Relations and the Underlying Absoluteness of Moral Values	215
XVI.	THE IDEAL SELF-EXISTENCE OF VALUES	217
	(a) The Self-Existence of Values for Knowledge	217
	(b) Ethical Reality and the Ethical Ideal Sphere	219
	(c) Ideal Self-Existence in General	222
	(d) The Ethico-Ideal Self-Existence of Values	225
	(e) Valuational Delusion and Blindness	226
	(f) The Transference of Attention and the Limits of Valuational Knowledge	229
XVII.	VALUES AS PRINCIPLES	232
	(a) Relation of Values to Reality	232
	(b) Values as Principles of the Ideal Ethical Sphere	234
	(c) Values as Principles of the Actual Ethical Sphere	236
	(d) Values as Principles of the Real Ethical Sphere	239
	(e) Teleological Metaphysics and the Ethical Phenomenon of Values	241

SECTION VI

THE ESSENCE OF THE OUGHT

XVIII.	THE RELATION OF VALUE AND THE OUGHT	247
	(a) The Ideal Ought-to-Be	247
	(b) The Positive Ought-to-Be	249
	(c) Range of Tension, Degree of Actuality and the Ethical Dimension of the Ought-to-Be	251
	(d) Plurality of Dimensions and Variety of Values	253
XIX.	POSITION OF THE OUGHT TOWARDS THE SUBJECT	255
	(a) The Pole of the Ought-to-Be in Real Existence	255
	(b) The Rôle of the Subject in the Metaphysic of the Ought	256

CHAPTER		PAGE
	(c) Ought-to-Be and Ought-to-Do, the Meta-physical Weakness of the Principle and the Strength of the Subject	259
	(d) Value and End, the Ought and the Will	262
	(e) The Appearance of Subjectivity in the Ought and the Axiological Determination	263
	(f) Subject and Person	266
	(g) Personality Conditioned by Value and the Ought	268
XX.	THE OUGHT AND THE FINALISTIC NEXUS	271
	(a) Categorical Analysis of Value and the Ought	271
	(b) Primary and Secondary Determination	273
	(c) The Finalistic Nexus as a Threefold Process	274
	(d) Forward and Backward Determination in the Finalistic Nexus	277
	(e) Duplication and Identity of the End	278
	(f) Man's Providence and Predestination	281
XXI.	THE TELEOLOGY OF VALUES AND THE METAPHYSIC OF MAN	283
	(a) Teleology, Natural and Cosmic	283
	(b) Philosophical Anthropomorphism and the Primacy of Axiological Determination	285
	(c) The Nullification of Man and the Inversion of the Fundamental Law of Categories	287
	(d) Ethics and Ontology, Man and Nature	290
	(e) Human Teleology and "Chance"	293

SECTION VII

METAPHYSICAL PERSPECTIVES

XXII.	TELEOLOGICAL ACTION AND REACTION	297
	(a) The Interlacing of Causality and Finality	297
	(b) The Community of Convergent and Divergent Purposes	298
	(c) Purposive Contradictions and Valuational Conflicts	299
XXIII.	THE MODAL STRUCTURE OF THE OUGHT	303
	(a) The Problem of Modality in the Nature of Value and the Ought	303

CONTENTS		25
CHAPTER		PAGE
	(b) Ontological Necessity and Actuality	305
	(c) The Abrogation of the Equipose of Possibility and Necessity in the Positive Ought-to-Be	307
	(d) The Modality of the Ideal Ought-to-Be and of the Self-Existence of Values	308
	(e) The Difficulties of Free Necessity	311
	(f) Freedom, Actualization and Possibility	314
XXIV.	THE METAPHYSICS OF PERSONALITY	317
	(a) Personalistic Metaphysics	317
	(b) Scheler's Doctrine of Person and Act	319
	(c) Acts and Persons as Objects	321
	(d) Personality and Subjectivity, "I" and "Thou"	323
	(e) Person and World	327
XXV.	METAPHYSICAL PERSONALISM	332
	(a) The Idea of the World and the Idea of God	332
	(b) The Individual Person and the Communal Person	334
	(c) "Persons of a Higher Order" and the Con- sciousness of such an Order	336
	(d) Ascending Orders of Corporate Bodies and Descending Orders of Personality	339
	(e) Ethics and Theology	341

