

Table of content

Preface | 7

I Why we cannot define ourselves as modern | 11

1. From modernity to the interregnum | 11
2. Anomie and absence of “regnum” | 20
3. The voice of politics and the silence of power | 25
4. If the liquid society is no longer able to explain the present | 29

II The return of the subject | 37

1. Modernity as a “discrete object” | 37
2. Towards a demassification | 41
3. Disappearance of the middle class | 49
4. A totalising desire | 55

III A matter of class | 67

1. In the beginning was the class struggle | 67
2. Class as an invention of the modern spirit | 73
3. Modernity and class consciousness | 81

IV The lost community | 91

1. Communitas and societas | 91
2. Multilocalism or cosmopolitanism? | 100
3. Urbanisation and globalisation | 109
4. The destiny of global cities | 116

References | 121

Index | 127