

Acknowledgments

This book was made possible through the help of many people. Our efforts started with the midterm conference of the SFB 1288 “Practices of comparing. Ordering and Changing the World,” at Bielefeld University (June 2022). With this conference we addressed the question of how comparing plays into the perception, representation and creation of social and historical change.

We owe our thanks to the research and student assistants, who were crucial for the organization and realization of the conference. Moreover, the workshop was strongly supported by Andrea Bendlage and Wiltrud Morawe, the scientific and administrative managers of the SFB, and their team. Marina Böddeker organized the public relations team and communicated our scientific program to a wider audience during and after the conference.

Talhas Minhas and Christian Wachter wrote a conference report and thus made us reflect the relation between practices of comparing, models and change once more in the aftermath of the conference. For the preparation of the publication we had immense support first by Anna Maria Neubert and later on by Vera Breitner. Katharina Bioly helped with the copy editing.

We owe particular thanks to the participants of the conference in June 2022, who revised their papers and contributed to the book. We also thank Mary Morgan, Alex Semyonov, and Joan-Pau Rubies, who enriched the discussions at our conference and inspired our thinking.

We are grateful to the BiUP team, most of all to Vera Breitner, our project manager, for guiding us through the various stages of preparing the book, to the anonymous peer reviewers for valuable comments, to P. X. Amphlett for editing and polishing the English of the texts of the German speaking contributors so skilfully, and to the publishing house transcript for their support.

Last but not least, it is thanks to the generous support of the German Research Foundation (DFG) that we had the opportunity to explore the questions set out here in detail and great depth.
