

Contents

Acknowledgements7

Introduction

Interculturality and postdigital communicative practice
Building interdisciplinary pathways between intercultural communication, sociolinguistics, and related fields
Milene Oliveira and Luisa Conti 11

Part I: Conceptualising interculturality, digitality, and language: Past, present, and future

Towards a posthumanist interculturality
Theory development in intercultural communication research
Dominic Busch 41

The colonial roots and continuities of AI language culture
Britta Schneider and Bettina Migge77

Part II: Understanding postdigital practices in a changing world: Language, technology, and culture

Story-formatting on social media
Ways of telling, teller identities, and audience engagement
Alex Georgakopoulou111

The use of language technologies in forced migration

An explorative study of Ukrainian women in Austria

Jenia Yudytska and Jannis Androutsopoulos135

'Living at the limit'

Sociotechnical affordances and unlearning colonial gender and sexuality

Daniel N. Silva167

Sustainability communication between globalisation and localisation

A comparison of corporate websites in the oil & gas industry

Nadine Thielemann and Zlatslava Savych195

Part III: Contextualising digital interculturality: Between connectivities and exclusions

Digital interculturality

Understanding postdigital reality through a new conceptual lens

Luisa Conti, Fergal Lenehan, Roman Lietz, and Milene Oliveira231

Appendix

Authors261