

Acknowledgements

Many present and past members of the ISU – Institute for Sustainable Urbanism (sustainableurbanism.org) at Technische Universität Braunschweig have contributed to this book in various capacities – directly and indirectly. We would therefore like to express our gratitude to Carolin Brüggebusch, Marie Bruun Yde, Anne-Kathrin Clever, Daniela Eichinger, Estefania Ferrá Escrivà, Tjark Gall, Juri Gödel, Jasmin Gora, Michaela Höckling, Tobias Kühn, Hannes Müller, Verena Schmidt, Maycon Sedrez, and Jacqueline Solberg. A very big thank goes to Dirk Neumann for his work and patience in the METAPOLIS project, which this book is derived from – you helped lay the groundwork for this book! For her intensive proofreading and constructive feedback, we extend our gratitude to Katja Knecht.

For the stimulating interdisciplinary collaboration and exchange in the METAPOLIS project, we would like to thank the members of the METAPOLIS Research Group at Technische Universität Braunschweig and Leibniz Universität Hannover, namely: Nils C. Bandelow, Felix Becker, Andreas Dahlkamp, Laura Grunwald-Eckhardt, Jens Lamprecht, Ann-Kristin Mühlbach, Malte Möck, Insa Neuweiler, Kim Pollak, Dania Richter, Susanne Robra-Bissantz, Anne-Kathrin Schneider, Anneke Schönfeld, Boris Schröder-Esselbach, Thomas Siefer, Nina Sievers, Michael Strohbach, Colette Vogeler, Stephan Weber, Thomas Wilken and the ISU Team.

The METAPOLIS project and this publication would not have been possible without the extensive support of our partner municipalities and organizations: Collective Municipality of Bersenbrück, City of Braunschweig, Free Hanseatic City of Bremen, City of Bremerhaven, Flecken Brome, City of Nienburg (Weser), Municipality of Vechelde, City of Verden (Aller), City of Wittingen, District of Wolfenbüttel, Wolfs-hagen (Harz) / City of Langelsheim, Alliance for the Region, Citizen Bus Associations Lower Saxony, Federal Foundation of Baukultur, German Sustainable Building Council (DGNB) and Regionalverband Großraum Braunschweig. In particular, we would like to name and thank their following representatives and our associated partners: Stephan Anders, Horst Baier, Adolf Bannier, Birgit Bartels, Matthias Bode, Regina Bollmeier, Gerhard Borchert, Katrin Elmert, Michael Grabsch, Manuela Hahn, Gabriele Helling, Ingo Henze, Tanja Herud, Anja Hesse, Sabine Hinrichs, Julius von Ingelheim, Dirk Konietzka, Tobias Kluge, Birgit Koröde, Thomas Krause, Peter Krämer, Lisa Krüger, Christine Lemaitre, Heinz-Georg Leuer, Andrea Lüneburg, Uwe Meer, Benjamin Möller, Reiner Nagel, Patrick Nestler, Burkhard Pahl, Claus Pahlitzsch, Harald Paul, Sabrina Puskeiler, Karl Ridder, Christine Ruiz Durán, Claus-Jürgen Schillmann, Gerrit Schrödel, Ute Sippel, Annika Sommer, Christiana Steinbrügge, Annett Steinführer, Ralf Sygusch, Sven Volkens, Frauke Wagner, Norbert Wagner, Michael Walther, Thorsten Warnecke, Ralf Werner and Sabine Wolff. A very special acknowledgement goes to the inspiring Ulrich Reimers, a former vice president of TU Braunschweig and an engaged citizen of one of our partner municipalities.

We would like to express our deepest gratitude to the communities featured in this book and their representatives, who have been actively engaged throughout the years as our partners in the research and development of the scenarios: the Collective Municipality Barnstorf represented by Jürgen Lübbers (retired former mayor) and Oliver Nixdorf (head of the planning and development company Planungs- und Entwicklungsgesellschaft Barnstorf mbH), the village of Eydelstedt represented by Friedrich Bokelmann (mayor), the Collective Municipality Elm-Asse and the City of Schöppenstedt represented by Dirk Neumann (mayor of the Collective Municipality), Rainer Apel (city director Schöppenstedt), Mathias Stieler (head of the building authority of the Collective Municipality), and last but not least the City of Wolfsburg represented by Kai-Uwe Hirschheide, the city's chief planning officer. Your work and engagement bears witness to the thousands of men and women working in public administration, who contribute to the well-being and thriving of our environment, society, and economy.

We thank the many participants – students, citizens and other stakeholders alike – who have attended our events and workshops, worked with us and participated in our manifold formats such as design studios, master classes, surveys, or public events.

One of our highlights was “research turning into theatre play”, with a scenic interpretation of METAPOLIS by the Junges! Staatstheater Braunschweig. Our Academy of Future Rural Spaces-Tour, in which students of TU Braunschweig and ISU researchers toured through Lower Saxony, allowed us to exchange ideas with representatives and citizens in villages and small towns such as Barnstorf, Bersenbrück, Vechelde and Wolfshagen (Harz) – we learned so much and thank you for your hospitality! Our design-to-built workshop in the village of Brome was another highlight for us, as we could really make an impact, and so were the multifaceted activities that took place around the annual Science Nights at TU Braunschweig, an exhibition of student and academic work at the end of every academic year.

Last but not least, we would like to thank our dear friend Johanna Siebein of Studio Laucke Siebein for the terrific cover design.

We gratefully acknowledge the financial support of the Volkswagen Foundation and the Ministry of Science and Culture of the State of Lower Saxony (Grant ZN3121) for the METAPOLIS research project.
