

Contents

Acknowledgments . . . . . vii

Introduction, Tyrus Miller . . . . . 1

Temporality in the Long Run

1. Stefan M. Maul, Walking Backwards into the Future:
The Conception of Time in the Ancient Near East . . . . . 15
2. Karen Bassi, Epic Remains: Seeing and Time in the Odyssey . . . . . 25
3. Jonathan Beecher, Fourier and the Saint-Simonians on the Shape of History . . . . . 47
4. Wai Chee Dimock, World History According to Katrina . . . . . 59

Historical Figures: Mediations, Citations, Narrations

5. Ruth HaCohen, Intricate Temporalities: The Transfiguration of Proper and “Improper” Sounds from Christian to Jewish Environments . . . . . 81
6. Britta Duelke, Quoting from the Past, or Dealing with Temporality . . . . . 105
7. Richard Terdiman, Taking Time: Temporal Representations and Cultural Politics . . . . . 131
8. Catherine M. Soussloff, Image-Times, Image-Histories,
Image-Thinking . . . . . 145
9. Bill Nichols, Documentary Re-enactments: A Paradoxical
Temporality That Is Not One . . . . . 171

Shapes of Modernity

10. László Kontler, Time and Progress—Time as Progress:
An Enlightened Sermon by William Robertson . . . . . 195
11. Andrew Wegley, Religious Revivals: The Binds of Religion and Modernity in Friedrich Nietzsche’s The Anti-Christ and Richard Wright’s The Outsider . . . . . 221

12. Lisa Rofel, Hetero-Temporalities of Post-Socialism . . . . .	243
13. David Couzens Hoy, The Politics of Temporality: Heidegger, Bourdieu, Benjamin, Derrida . . . . .	261
“To the Planetarium”: From Cosmos to History and Back
14. Tyrus Miller, Eternity No More: Walter Benjamin on the Eternal Return . . . . .	279
15. Karl Clausberg, A Microscope for Time: What Benjamin and Klages, Einstein and the Movies Owe to Distant Stars . . . . .	297
Contributors . . . . .	359
Index . . . . .	365