The editors wish to thank the Åke Wiberg Foundation, the Magnus Bergvall Foundation, and the Linnaeus University Center for Concurrences in Colonial and Postcolonial Studies, for funding the work that led to this volume, especially a two-day collaborative meeting at Teleborg Castle, Sweden, in March 2017, where the project took closer form. Sincere thanks also go to Amsterdam University Press, who were warmly supportive of the project from an early stage. We also thank the Griffith Centre for Social and Cultural Research at Griffith University for purchasing the rights for our cover image. Moreover, we express our gratitude to all those who have been involved in the making of this book. Apart from the contributors to the volume, and those providing comments and advice on the various chapters, we wish to thank the two anonymous reviewers and, not least, Saskia Gieling of the AUP editorial board. We are also very grateful to Professor Lauren Benton, who, although not present at the inception of the project, wrote a thoughtful and provocative afterword.
