

Table of Contents

Preface	9
Bibliography	11
1. Introduction	13
1.1 The neglected notion of hope	13
1.2 Jonathan Sacks	14
1.3 Theology as the good life	14
1.4 Conversation with economics on radical uncertainty in climate change	16
1.5 A reader's guide: Outline of the study	20
1.6 Conclusion	23
Bibliography	23
2. Stating the Problem: Radical Uncertainty	27
2.1 Introduction	27
2.2 Economics	28
2.3 Economics on climate change	29
2.4 Stern/Nordhaus-controversy	32
2.5 Uncertainty	34
2.6 Radical uncertainty	36
2.7 Economics on radical uncertainty	37
2.8 Theology on radical uncertainty in climate change	41
2.9 Conclusion	43
Bibliography	44
3. Theology and Economics in Conversation	47
3.1 Introduction	47
3.2 Theology and economics	48
3.3 Van Huyssteen's postfoundational approach	50
3.4 Transversal reasoning	53
3.5 A shared problem: radical uncertainty in the context of climate change	55
3.6 Hope in climate change	56
3.7 Central question and structure of the research	59
3.8 Conclusion	60
Bibliography	61

4. Jonathan Sacks' Understanding of Hope	65
4.1 Introduction	65
4.2 A postfoundational approach to theology	67
4.3 Developing a middle ground: Torah vehokmah	69
4.4 The meaning of Torah vehokmah	70
4.5 Torah	72
4.6 Torah and the narrative	75
4.7 The Exodus	76
4.8 Key ingredients of Sacks' understanding of hope	78
4.8.1 Emunah	78
4.8.2 Chessed	80
4.8.3 A change of identity	82
4.9 God, a particular light in a universal world	85
4.10 Retelling the narrative of hope	86
4.11 Critical assumptions of hope	89
4.12 Conclusion	90
Bibliography	91
5. Transversal Reasoning on Emunah	93
5.1 Introduction	93
5.2 A postfoundational approach to economics	95
5.3 The economist Bart Nooteboom on trust	98
5.4 TR between Sacks and Nooteboom on emunah	100
5.4.1 On emunah	101
5.4.2 On climate change	103
5.5 Conclusion	105
Bibliography	105
6. Transversal Reasoning on Chessed	107
6.1 Introduction	107
6.2 The economist Bowles on social preference 1	108
6.3 TR between Sacks and Bowles on cheded	110
6.3.1 On cheded	110
6.3.2 On climate change	113
6.4 Nooteboom on relational contracting	115
6.5 TR between Sacks and Nooteboom on governance of cheded	116
6.5.1 On governance	116
6.5.2 On climate change	119

6.6 Conclusion	124
Bibliography	125
7. Transversal Reasoning on Change of Identity	127
7.1 Introduction	127
7.2 Bowles on social preference 2	128
7.3 TR between Sacks and Bowles on change of identity	130
7.3.1 On change of identity	131
7.3.2 On climate change	132
7.4 The economist Dan Ariely on Sabbath	134
7.5 TR between Sacks and Ariely on governance of change of identity	136
7.5.1 On governance	136
7.5.2 On climate change	138
7.6 Conclusion	143
Bibliography	143
8. Transversal Reasoning on Narrative	145
8.1 Introduction	145
8.2 The economists John Kay & Mervyn King on narrative	145
8.3 TR between Sacks and Kay & King on narrative	148
8.3.1 On narrative	148
8.3.2 On climate change	150
8.4 Conclusion	155
Bibliography	156
9. Conclusions	157
9.1 Introduction	157
9.2 Answering the sub-questions	159
9.2.1 Conversation between theology and economy	159
9.2.2 Sacks' understanding of hope	159
9.2.3 Applying TR	160
9.3 Main conclusions	161
9.3.1 Conclusions on emunah	161
9.3.2 Conclusions on chesed	161
9.3.3 Conclusions on change of identity	162
9.3.4 Conclusions on narrative	163
9.3.5 Conclusions on covenant and public Sabbath	164

9.4 What disciplines can learn from TR	166
9.4.1 Theology	166
9.4.2 Economics	167
9.5 Limitations and further research	168
Bibliography	169
 Bibliography	 171