Despite being reported rightly in reference to ‘the end of the eighth century’ anywhere else in the paper, in this particular section the sentence had been wrongly referred as the ‘beginning’ rather than the ‘end’ (p. 249). The correct sentence is as follow:

The Greek settlement, located, as well as the indigenous site, along the coastline of the Hyblaeon Plateau, 400 metres north of the Tellaro River, was probably already founded at the end of the eighth century BC, and more relevant for this research, the archaeological excavation shows how an indigenous sites probably preceded the Greek Syracusan subcolony, with the discovery of ceramic, mainly proto-Corinthian pottery as well known at Monte Finocchito.
