

Table of Contents

Monte Ransome Johnson

Democritus, The Laughing Philosopher — 1

Eric v.d. Luft

The Contemptuous Laughter of Democritus and Nietzsche — 29

Felipe G. A. Moreira

A Joke: On the Plurality of Worlds and Ostrichist — 49

Steven Gimbel and Thomas Wilk

Joke Capital vs. Punching Up/Punching Down: Accounting for the Ethical Relation between Joker and Target — 71

Jarno Hietalahti

Humanistic Ethics of Humor: The Problematics of Punching Up and Kicking Down — 91

Nicholas Low

“You Must Be Joking!”: Theory, Religion, and The Domestication of the Ludic — 121

David Bartosch

Humor in Chinese Traditions of Thought, Part One: Systematic Reflections in View of Ancient Confucian and Daoist Applications of Humor — 147

Discussion: Short Article for Further Debate

Kishor Vaidya

The Shared Presupposition Norm of Joking: A Philosophical Exploration — 185

Timothy M. Kwiatek

“I Finally Got the Joke” — 187

Margaret Betz

Do Joke-Telling Norms Apply to Laughtivism? — 189

Drew Chastain

“I’m Only Human”: A Self-Referential Sense of Humor and Meaningful Living — 193

Philosophical Satire and Criticism

Fatma Fulya Tepe and Per Bauhn

Recaptioning Cartoons from Historical Turkish Humor Magazines as Feminist Media Activism: The Case of Boşboğaz — 219

Humor in Philosophy Education

Lydia Amir

How Can Philosophy Improve Your Sense of Humor? — 227

Symposium

Dustin Peone. Making Philosophy Laugh: Humor, Irony, and Folly in Philosophical Thought. Cascade Books, 2023. pp. 158.

Critics

Claudine Davidshofer

In Search of a Lost Philosophical Humor — 259

Alexander Bertland

The Moment of Laughter — 265

Alex Montag

On Making Philosophy Laugh — 271

Alan Perry and Steven Gimbel

“Where the enemy is mighty, one must be clever”: Peone, Vico, and Guareschi on Power in Humor — 277

Author's Response

Dustin Peone

Humor Resartus — 285

Book Reviews — 293

Call for Papers, Book Reviews, Guidelines — 321