This listing acknowledges the receipt of recent works (except offprints of single articles) that appear to bear on the theory of signs (semiotics). The receipt of individual books cannot be separately acknowledged, and no book can be returned to the publisher. Note especially that, by accepting a book, the Editor implies no promise that it will be reviewed in this journal. Reviews are printed as circumstances permit; copies are sent to the publisher of work received.

SEMIOTICA — an international journal — is the organ of the International Association for Semiotic Studies, founded at a meeting held in Paris on January 21-22, 1969.

This journal continues "Studies in Semiotics", which appeared during 1967 and 1968 as a section of Social Science Information.

SEMIOTICA, with a strictly scientific orientation, plans to publish studies in all fields in which the notion of sign is or can be recognized and discussed, such as logic, linguistics, information theory, analysis of social relationships, types of discourse (in epistemology, anthropology, psychoanalysis, etc.), poetics, esthetics in the arts.

We invite contributions from all who are interested in developing semiotic concepts within the lines of the scientific approach we wish to encourage.

The official languages of SEMIOTICA are English and French, but articles in German and Russian may be accepted.
