

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction:
Public Health, Race, and Citizenship	i
1. Public Health and the Mapping of Chinatown	17
2. Regulating Bodies and Space	45
3. Perversity, Contamination, and the Dangers of Queer Domesticity	77
4. White Women, Hygiene, and the Struggle for Respectable Domesticity	105
5. Plague and Managing the Commercial City	120
6. White Labor and the American Standard of Living	158
7. Making Medical Borders at Angel Island	179
8. Healthy Spaces, Healthy Conduct	204
9. Reforming Chinatown	225
Conclusion: Norms as a Way of Life	251
Notes	259
Bibliography	333
Index	367

