Acknowledgments

Mil gracias to all who have supported me through the years I spent writing this book. I own enormous debt to the colleagues and friends who left their imprint on my work. My sisters, Angela Fregoso and Maria Teresa Araiza, resurrected family memories and offered editorial suggestions, del mero corazón. B. Ruby Rich, Isabel Velásquez, and Ian Haney López provided exceptional commentary on earlier drafts. I am especially grateful to Dana Takagi and George Lipsitz, series editors of "American Crossroads," and Lisa Lowe for their intellectual generosity and superb editorial suggestions. Monica McCormick, Jacqueline Volin, and the readers at the University of California Press contributed invaluable assistance. Special thanks to Sue Carter for being such a thoughtful and engaging copyeditor. I was fortunate to count on the skilled research assistance of Erin Maya Higgins, Graciela Berkovitch, Kim Owyoung, Jesikah Marie Ross, and Deb Vargas.

Portions of this manuscript were written during my tenure at the University of California-Davis. Numerous colleagues as well as students in Women and Gender Studies deepened my understanding of feminism and critical race studies. I would like to acknowledge the support and friendship of my UC-Davis colleagues, especially Sarah Projansky, Judith Newton, Gayatri Gopinath, Susan Kaiser, Shaunna Ludwig, Kent Ono, Beatríz Pesquera, Lorena Oropeza, Lynn Hershman, Wendy Ho, Dianne MacCleod, Michael Peter Smith, Luis Guarnizo, JoAnne Cannon, Sergio de la Mora, and my theoretical hermana del alma/co-conspirator, Angie Chabram-Dernersesian.

I feel fortunate to have gained new fellowship and solidarities with my move to the University of California-Santa Cruz. Ongoing dialogues and exchanges with my students have advanced my intellectual and political understanding of cultural politics. I am grateful to be in the company of such inspirational colleagues in Latin American/Latino Studies. I am especially grateful to Jonathan Fox for news clippings of current events in Mexico.

My deepest gratitude for their dedicated scholarship and teaching to Rosaura Sánchez, Susan Kirkpatrick, Iris and Carlos Blanco, and Herb Schiller, who unfortunately passed away while I was writing this book.

Throughout the years of working on this project many colleagues have advanced and enabled my thinking. I especially thank those of you whose writing inspired me along the way. I am also grateful to the colleagues who invited me to present my work at conferences and college campuses. I hope that I have honored the feedback I received in these various forums.

Special thanks to the filmmakers, musicians, and artists who continue to feed my soul. I would like to acknowledge the guidance of my guitar maestro, Richard Spross; Clairemarut Evasco and Robert Zeiger have also supported me along the way. I have been fortunate to work with a vibrant community of film and video makers through the Film Arts Foundation under the leadership of Gail Silva.

Over the years my creativity has been sustained by passionate conversations over good wine and food in the company of Lourdes Portillo, Ellen Gavin, Beth Hass, Chip Lord, Lata Mani, Ruth Frankenberg, Pam Ivy, Aida Hurtado, Craig Haney, David Wellman, Ruby Rich, Mary Peelen, Alvina Quintana, Ed Guerrero, Angela Davis, Gina Dent, Sara Garcia, Victor Fuentes, Reneé Tajima-Peña, Armando Peña, Brenda Cabral, Kevin Fitzpatrick, Ian Haney López, and Deb Cortez-Dickerson.

I received financial support from various sources. At the University of California-Davis, I thank the Faculty Career Development Office; the Office of the Dean of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies; and the Chicana Latina Research Center. At the University of California-Santa Cruz, I thank the Division of Social Sciences. The Rockefeller Foundation provided a Bellagio Residency Fellowship. I also appreciate the kind generosity of Gianna Celli, Yolanda Garcia, Gina Dent, and Angela Davis.

I can never repay my compañero Herman Gray for his companionship, unwavering support, intellectual acumen, and devoted teaching. He deserves a medal for enduring my intractable writing and study habits. I am forever indebted to my two children, Xochitl Magaly and Sergio

Emilio, and my grandson, Jasim, for replenishing my heart throughout the years. I appreciate the support of my mother, Lucia Orea Chapa, my father, Francisco Fregoso Gómez, and my sisters and brothers. Finally, I would like to express my deep appreciation to social activists everywhere for reminding us that peace and global justice matter.
