

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Thanks to the many people who helped me through this project: To my late friend and colleague Craig Callen, who exemplified and inspired independent thought and precision. To my colleagues Kevin Saunders and David Thronson, whose comments on portions of earlier drafts guided and inspired me. To Associate Dean Chuck Ten Brink and the tireless librarians he leads at Michigan State University College of Law, including Hildur Hanna, Jane Meland, Kathy Prince, Robin Doutre, Janet Hedin, Brent Domann, and Brooke Moynihan, and especially to Allison Eicher and Barbara Bean, whose professional dedication and expert focus made me feel as if I were their only client. To Dean Joan Howarth and attorney John F. Schaefer, whose support was genuine and generous. To doctoral candidate Matt Piszczek, who insisted on statistical and linguistic rigor, always with a happy spirit. To my many talented student research assistants, including Scott Milligan, Alice Newlin, and Sarah Primrose. To Nancy Dowd, a smart and supportive editor who critiques without wounding. And to my dear husband, Michael Gorman, who pulled me through many a tough moment.

This book draws on and sometimes reproduces portions of my prior writings, including the following: “Lovers, Parents, and Partners: Disentangling Spousal and Co-Parenting Commitments,” Arizona Law Review 54 (2012): 197; “Alimony Theory,” Family Law Quarterly 45 (2011): 271; “Mothers, Myths and the Law of Divorce: One More Feminist Case for Partnership,” William and Mary Journal of Women and the Law 13 (2006): 203; “One More Time: Alimony, Intuition, and the Remarriage-Termination Rule,” Indiana Law Journal 81 (Summer 2006): 971; “Mothers as Suckers: Pity, Partnership, and Divorce Discourse,” Iowa Law Review 90 (2005): 1513; “Victims, Breeders, Joy and Math: First Thoughts on Compensatory Spousal Payments under The Principles,” Duke Journal of Gender Law and Policy 8 (2001): 137; “Reflections on Betty Crocker, Soccer Mom, and Divorce: A Message from Detergent Manufacturers,” Wisconsin Law Review (1997): 285; “Applications of a Contemporary Partnership Model for Divorce,” Brigham Young University Journal of Public Law 8 (1993): 107; and “Divorce and the Displaced Homemaker: A Discourse on Playing with Dolls, Partnership Buyouts and Dissociation under No-Fault,” University of Chicago Law Review 60 (1993): 67.
