

Contents

|                                |      |
|--------------------------------|------|
| Tables and Figures             | ix   |
| Acknowledgments                | xi   |
| Abbreviations Used in the Book | xiii |

Part 1: Situating Noticing among Teachers

|   |                                              |    |
|---|----------------------------------------------|----|
| 1 | Introduction and Overview                    | 3  |
|   | Introduction                                 | 3  |
|   | The Path to this Book                        | 6  |
|   | Overview of the Book                         | 10 |
| 2 | Noticing: An Integrative Perspective         | 11 |
|   | Noticing as a Confluence                     | 11 |
|   | Noticing in SLA Research                     | 13 |
|   | Interaction in SLA Research                  | 17 |
|   | A Holistic View of Teacher–Learner Noticing  | 21 |
|   | An Analytic View of Teacher–Learner Noticing | 24 |
|   | Summary                                      | 26 |
| 3 | Language Teacher Noticing                    | 28 |
|   | What Does Teacher Noticing Have to Offer?    | 28 |
|   | Teacher Cognition                            | 29 |
|   | Reflective Teaching                          | 31 |
|   | Defining Teacher Noticing                    | 35 |
|   | Language Teacher Noticing                    | 40 |
|   | Summary                                      | 44 |

Part 2: A Study of Pre-Service Teachers

|   |                                                    |    |
|---|----------------------------------------------------|----|
| 4 | Contextualizing the Study                          | 49 |
|   | The Psychology of Language Teaching                | 49 |
|   | The Context of Noticing: From Meso to Micro Levels | 50 |
|   | The School and Community                           | 52 |
|   | The Teacher Education Program                      | 54 |
|   | The Tasks                                          | 55 |
|   | Noticing Based on Video                            | 59 |
|   | Summary                                            | 62 |

|                               |                                           |     |
|-------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|-----|
| 5                             | Researching Teacher Noticing              | 64  |
|                               | Challenges in Researching Noticing        | 64  |
|                               | Methodological Options                    | 66  |
|                               | Research Design and Questions             | 67  |
|                               | Participants                              | 69  |
|                               | Data Collection and Procedure             | 70  |
|                               | Validity and Reliability                  | 72  |
|                               | Summary                                   | 76  |
| 6                             | Influences on Teacher Noticing            | 78  |
|                               | Issues and Hypotheses                     | 78  |
|                               | Data Coding                               | 81  |
|                               | Descriptive Statistics                    | 82  |
|                               | Quantitative Analyses of Noticing         | 84  |
|                               | Taking Teacher Noticing to Task           | 87  |
|                               | Putting Teacher Noticing in Perspective   | 89  |
|                               | Summary                                   | 91  |
| 7                             | Noticing of Embodied Resources            | 93  |
|                               | The Role of Embodied Resources            | 93  |
|                               | Facial Expressions                        | 97  |
|                               | Gaze                                      | 100 |
|                               | Movement                                  | 103 |
|                               | Tasks and Embodiment                      | 105 |
|                               | Summary                                   | 106 |
| 8                             | Noticing of Verbal Resources              | 108 |
|                               | Meaning and Usage-Based Learning in Tasks | 108 |
|                               | Constructional Meaning                    | 113 |
|                               | Landmark Descriptions                     | 119 |
|                               | Route Directions                          | 121 |
|                               | Tasks and Language                        | 123 |
|                               | Summary                                   | 124 |
| 9                             | Noticing and Pre-Service Teachers         | 126 |
|                               | Overview of the Main Findings             | 126 |
|                               | Integrating the Findings                  | 129 |
|                               | Study Limitations                         | 134 |
|                               | Implications for Pre-Service Teachers     | 135 |
|                               | Summary                                   | 137 |
| Part 3: Conclusion |                                           |     |
| 10                            | Future Directions                         | 141 |
|                               | A Role for Teacher Noticing               | 141 |
|                               | Language Teacher Education                | 142 |
|                               | Language Teacher Development              | 144 |

|                                                       |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Language Teaching Research                            | 148 |
| Reflecting on Noticing as Teacher Psychology          | 149 |
| Appendices                                            | 151 |
| Appendix A: Map Gap Task Materials (Teacher Versions) | 151 |
| Appendix B: Coding Guidelines (Excerpt)               | 153 |
| Appendix C: Transcription Conventions                 | 155 |
| References                                            | 156 |
| Index                                                 | 172 |

