

Advocacy in Translanguaging Education

TRANSLANGUAGING IN THEORY AND PRACTICE

Series Editors: Li Wei, University College London, Angel Lin, Simon Fraser University, Yuen Yi Lo, The University of Hong Kong and Saskia Van Viegen, York University.

Translanguaging in Theory and Practice aims to publish work that highlights the dynamic use of an individual's linguistic repertoire and challenges the socially and politically defined boundaries of languages and their hierarchy. We invite research from across disciplines by both established and emergent researchers in multifarious settings, including everyday use, educational, digital and workplace contexts. We also actively welcome and solicit studies on translanguaging in contexts where English is not the mainstream language and where other modalities and semiotic resources take prominence over speech and writing. The series is transdisciplinary and encourages scholars to publish empirical research on translanguaging, especially that which aims to disrupt power relations, to create new identities and communities, to engage in the discussion of translanguaging theories and pedagogies, and/or to help the field of translanguaging consolidate its scholarship.

Topics to be covered by the series include:

- Theoretical underpinnings of Translanguaging.
- Translanguaging Pedagogies.
- Translanguaging in Assessment.
- Translanguaging and Language Policy.
- Translanguaging in Everyday Social Practices in Different Contexts and Communities, including Digital/Social/Media.

All books in this series are externally peer-reviewed.
