GLOBAL FORUM ON SOUTHERN EPISTEMOLOGIES

Series Editors: Sinfree Makoni (Pennsylvania State University, USA), Rafael Lomeu Gomes (University of Oslo, Norway), Magda Madany-Saá (Pennsylvania State University, USA), Bassey E. Antia (University of the Western Cape, South Africa) and Chanel Van Der Merwe (Nelson Mandela University, South Africa)

This book series publishes independent volumes concerned primarily with exploring peripheralized ways of framing and conducting language studies in both the Global South and Global North. We are particularly interested in the 'geopolitics of knowledge' as it pertains to language studies and aim to illustrate how language scholarship in the Global North is partially indebted to diverse traditions of scholarship in the Global South. We are also keen to explore interfaces between language and other areas of human and non-human scholarship. Ultimately, our concern is not only epistemological; it is also political, educational and social. The books are part of the Global Forum, which is open and politically engaged. The Global Forum fosters collegiality and dialogue, using the technologies essential to productivity during the pandemic that have served our collective benefit. In the book series, we experiment with the format of the book, challenging the colonial concept of a single monologic authorial voice by integrating multiple voices, consistent with decoloniality and the democratic and politically engaged nature of our scholarship.

Early Praise for Hospitable Linguistics: Alternative, Indigenous and Critical Approaches to Language Research and Language Encounters

'This exciting and multilingual volume is a breath of fresh air in an area that has become increasingly inaccessible. Its inclusive scope, giving space to normally unheard voices, is truly timely and will be of interest to a wide variety of audiences'.

Alexandra Aikhenvald, CQ University, Australia

'Hospitable Linguistics invites speakers to re-inhabit language practices and to reflect on the discipline's hegemonic foundations. Embracing diversity beyond linguistic variation is crucial to this inclusive understanding of Linguistics'.

Javier Serrano Aviles, Instituto Cervantes, Hanoi, Vietnam

'Hospitable Linguistics invites the reader to a generous, expansive encounter with language, making space for a diverse collection of voices and experiences. The book enacts the movement between roles as fieldworkers, cultural insiders and creative practitioners'.

Siún Carden, University of the Highlands and Islands, Shetland, UK

'This bracingly original book, assembled by a range of scholars who are working at the forefront of their fields and imbued with interdisciplinary insights, goes beyond the usual pathways of investigation to weave linguistic heritage with the modes of human interaction'.

Anthony Grant, Edge Hill University, UK
