

Acknowledgements

This third edition, like the two that preceded it, has only come to fruition due to the encouragement, contributions and support of many friends and colleagues. We would like to acknowledge the support of Sarah Williams, Elinor Robertson and Flo McClelland (Channel View Publications) and the Aspects of Tourism series editors, Chris Cooper (Leeds Beckett University), Michael Hall (University of Canterbury) and Dallen Timothy (Arizona State University). Work on the planning and writing of this third edition took place during periods of study leave in February 2017 (Dunedin, New Zealand) and June 2017 (Edmonton, Canada) for which we acknowledge the support of the University of Otago and the University of Alberta. James also acknowledges the support of the University of Stavanger (Norway) Visiting Professorship and the University of Queensland (Australia) Jim Whyte Fellowship, and Tom his position at Wakayama University (Japan) as a visiting Distinguished University Professor.

We are grateful for the case study contributions of Richard Shipway (University of Bournemouth), Eiji Ito (Wakayama University), Brendon Knott (Cape Peninsula University of Technology), Arianne Reis (University of Western Sydney), Daniel Evans (York University), Debbie Hopkins (University of Oxford), Brent Moyle (University of the Sunshine Coast), Robert Steiger (University of Innsbruck) and Adam Doering (Wakayama University) and the focus point contributions of Cory Kulczycki (University of Regina), Greg Ramshaw (Clemson University), Inge Derom (Vrije Universiteit Brussel), Millicent Kennelly (Griffith University) Matt Lamont (Southern Cross University), Glen Norcliff, (York University), Michelle Rutty (Michigan State University) and Scarlett Hagen and Mike Boyes (University of Otago). Their critical insights have stimulated our work in the field of sport tourism, and contributed theoretical and empirical insights that illustrate and advance the discussions that we present in this edition. We are also indebted to Sabine Parry (University of Otago), Aisulu Abdykadyrova (University of Alberta) and all of our colleagues at the Department of Tourism, University of Otago and the Faculty of Kinesiology, Sport, and Recreation, University of Alberta.

Finally, the support of our immediate families, Linda, Alexandra, Kate and George, and Lorraine, Lindsay and Gillian, has been critical to the completion of this third edition.
