

Figures and Tables

Figures

Figure 0.1	(Left) Tourists read the sign asking visitors not to climb Uluru (Central Australia) and explaining the reasons the Anangu Traditional Owners ask this. (Right) Tourists climb Uluru, circa 2011. Credit: Co-author Freya Higgins-Desbiolles.	4
Figure 0.2	Community-centred tourism framework. Figure adapted with permission from Higgins-Desbiolles et al. (2019: 1937). Taylor and Francis Inc. http://tandfonline.com .	6
Figure 0.3	Applying subsidiarity to our travel circuits A framework for proximity travel	21
Figure 1.1	Uncle Joe Edgar shows visitors a makapala (bush banana) growing on a tree near the Karajarri Tourism and Cultural Hub. He explains the importance of these traditional bush foods and how many of them grow plentifully during the wet season. Credit: Co-author Bobbie Chew Bigby.	37
Figure 1.2	Stepping into tourism. Adapted from: Stepwise Heritage and Tourism (n.d.)	40
Figure 1.3	Karajarri tour leader Wynston Shovellor (centre) speaks to a group of students at a lagoon on Karajarri Country. He explains the significance of this waterscape to students, then demonstrates the Karajarri practice of kuviyinjijala , where a person takes water in their hand and then blows it out, allowing the Country to know that person better. Credit: Co-author Bobbie Chew Bigby.	41
Figure 1.4	Principles of place-based approaches to tourism governance	46
Figure 2.1	Visual model of the proposed theoretical framework for a local turn in tourism	62
Figure 5.1	Cigarette ‘butt-feeder’ containers employed by young co-researchers in the Youth4Sea project. Credit: Author	108

Figure 6.1	The doughnut economy model has helped the Monteverde community envision and enact strategies to meet human needs without overshooting the ecological ceiling. Doughnut model imposed over coordinators planning a community garden site in a disused bullring. Photo source: Paula Vargas, used with permission	120
Figure 6.2	Participants in the first Verdes market selling ceviche made of green plantains from a home garden (left, photo source: Irene G. Chen, used with permission) and the Verdes market's future home, a defunct bullring the market will share with a community garden (right, photo credit: Author)	127
Figure 7.1	Discovering Malta and Gozo through its people and culture. Source: Malta Tourism Society 2018 (used with permission)	134
Figure 7.2	Community Tourism Malta: 'Meet the Locals'. Source: Malta Tourism Society 2018 (used with permission)	143
Figure 7.3	Community Tourism Malta: Opportunities	148
Figure 7.4	Community Tourism Malta: Challenges	149
Figure 9.1	A downstream approach versus an upstream approach to child protection in development	174
Figure 10.1	The destruction and burning of the Greenwood neighbourhood. In the foreground is the building containing the Village Blacksmith Shop. The printed caption reads, 'Runing [sic] the negro out of Tulsa, June 1, 1921'. Credit: Tulsa Historical Society & Museum (used with permission)	198
Figure 10.2	A group being led to the Convention Hall during the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre. Credit: Tulsa Historical Society & Museum (used with permission)	198
Figure 10.3	Blocks of destroyed homes following the Tulsa Race Massacre. Credit: Tulsa Historical Society & Museum (used with permission)	199
Figure 10.4	Black Tulsans detained during the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre. Credit: Tulsa Historical Society & Museum (used with permission)	199
Figure 10.5	The front entrance of the Greenwood Cultural Center in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Credit: Co-author Bobbie Chew Bigby	201
Figure 10.6	A plaque commemorating the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre. Behind the plaque stands the historic Vernon AME Church, one of only two churches to have survived the Massacre. The church stands facing the Greenwood Cultural Center. Credit: Co-author Bobbie Chew Bigby	202

Figure 10.7	A large mural of ‘Black Wall St.’ that is painted onto the side of the highway that intersects the historic Greenwood neighbourhood and faces the Greenwood Cultural Center. Credit: Co-author Bobbie Chew Bigby	203
Figure 10.8	Michelle Brown-Burdex speaking with President Joseph Biden on his visit to the Greenwood Cultural Center during the Centennial Commemoration on 1 June 2021. Credit: Christopher Creese, Creeseworks (used with permission)	208
Figure 11.1	La Trapa. Credit: Co-author Macià Blázquez-Salom	222
Figure 11.2	Visitors at the viewpoint of La Trapa. Credit: Co-author Macià Blázquez-Salom	225
Figure 12.1	The city arcade as it looks today. Credit: Author	239
Figure 12.2	Homage to the secret baths by local graffiti artist painted on power box outside the arcade. Credit: Author	240
Figure 12.3	Detail of the secret baths’ history presented in public graffiti art. Credit: Author	241
Figure 13.1	Banners against evictions near the Carmel’s Bunkers, Turó de la Rovira. Credit: Author, 2019	255
Figure 13.2	Banners against evictions at the Carrer de Mallorca, next to La Sagrada Familia. Credit: Author, 2020	256
Figure 13.3	Banner against evictions near the MACBA, El Raval. Credit: Author, 2019	257
Figure 13.4	Banner against Airbnb, noise, skateboarding and tourists near the MACBA, El Raval. Credit: Author, 2019	257
Figure 13.5	Map of selected tourism-related conflicts in Barcelona. Map created by the author with uMap	260
Figure 14.1	A preliminary schema to advance the local turn in tourism studies. Reprinted from Annals of Tourism Research , Vol 92, F. Higgins-Desbiolles and B.C. Bigby, ‘A local turn in tourism’, 103291, with permission of Elsevier	276

Tables

Table 4.1	Society is complex, heterogeneous and evolves: Implications for a local-led change strategy	93
-----------	---	----

Table 6.1	The creation of community cryptocurrencies begins by determining objectives and developing specific actions to support those objectives Community members complete actions to earn Verdes currency	124
Table 14.1	Tentative framework for community involvement	277