This book is the result of a community project initiated, designed and coordinated by York University's Centre for the Support of Teaching under the leadership of the Academic Director, Pat Rogers. A large number of people have contributed to the project's success along the way, most notably the members of the editorial committee: Jerry Ginsburg, Janice Newton, Jan Rehner, Pat Rogers, Sue Sbrizzi and John Spencer. John Spencer chaired the editorial committee for the first year. Janice Newton assumed the chair's role during John's sabbatical and continued in this role until the project's successful completion.

We would like to express our heartfelt appreciation to everyone who participated in the production and publication of this work. We thank each of the authors – faculty, students and administrators without whom this book would not be completed – for taking the time to share their thoughts, ideas and insights. In addition, we would like to thank the staff and associates of the Centre for the Support of Teaching who provided excellent support, guidance and feedback throughout the course of this project, especially James Brown, Susan Cohen, John Dwyer, Olivia Petrie, Gail Vanstone and Diane Zorn. We would also like to thank our publishers, Peter Saunders of Garamond Press and Michael Jackel of the York University Bookstore, for their belief in the value of this work and their advice and guidance in bringing it to publication.
