

Acknowledgments

Many people have helped me to write Diagnosis: Truths and Tales. Thanks are in order first to Thierry Jutel and Ian Williams for contributing chapters to this work, and to Lisa Sanders for writing the foreword, but more importantly, for helping me to think more broadly about the subject. For research support, I thank the splendid library staff at the Center for the History of Medicine at the Harvard Countway Library and at the Wellcome Collection in London. Justin Cargill at the Victoria University Library gets a special mention for his continuous support. Many people have read also and commented on the work in various stages of production. I thank my colleagues who have read my work and given me critical feedback: Douglas Booth, Anna Jackson, and Joanna Kempner, and the anonymous reviewers.

And as always, thanks to Ellen Goldstein, champion wordsmith.

This page intentionally left blank

DIAGNOSIS: TRUTHS AND TALES

This page intentionally left blank