

Figures

- 0.1 East and West Germany, c. 1975 1
- 0.2 Gay spaces in divided Berlin, c. 1975 2
- 0.3 Dancing figures, 1977 4
- 1.1 Individuals convicted under §175 and §175(a), per annum, 1900–43 25
- 2.1 Individuals convicted under §175 and §175(a), per annum, in the Federal Republic of Germany, 1950–94 40
- 3.1 Individuals convicted under §175, per annum, per capita, in the Weimar Republic, East Germany, and West Germany 70
- 3.2 East German newspaper articles including the word “homosexual,” per annum, 1946–71 75
- 4.1 The 12 May 1969 cover of Der Spiegel 82
- 4.2 West German newspaper articles mentioning “homosexuality,” per annum, 1949–69 99
- 5.1 Stasi gay espionage diagram 113
- 6.1 Gay and lesbian establishments in West German cities, 1972 and 1982 121
- 6.2 Marchers in the HAW-led protest on 10 June 1973 135
- 7.1 Peter Rausch, Michael Eggert, and Charlotte von Mahlsdorf in the 1970s 152
- 8.1 A 1985 map of gay establishments near West Berlin’s Nollendorfplatz 171
- 8.2 Der Spiegel’s infamous AIDS cover from 6 June 1983 178
- 8.3.a–d Deutsche AIDS-Hilfe safer sex posters from 1985 182
- 9.1 East German newspaper articles including the word “homosexual,” per annum, 1970–89 209
- 9.2 New HIV infections in East and West Berlin, 1985–9 213

x Figures

- 9.3 A map of the gay subculture in Berlin's Prenzlauer Berg neighbourhood produced by the Stasi 217
- 9.4 Comparison of when different countries equalized ages of consent and formally allowed gay men to serve in the military 224
- 10.1 Party of Democratic Socialism 1990 campaign poster 228
- 10.2 The Sunday Club in Prenzlauer Berg 235