

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This work is based on the Ph.D. dissertation that I completed in 2007 at the Hebrew Union College, in Cincinnati. It is with great satisfaction that I can pay my debt of gratitude to those who have made it possible.

First, I would like to thank Dr. Sam Greengus, not only for believing with me that this subject was worth the time and effort, but more so for advising, sustaining and encouraging me throughout this process. His experience and scholarly acumen were absolutely critical during the process of writing. Second, my deep appreciation goes to Dr. Adam Kamesar, whose high scholarly standards and expertise constantly challenged me in raising the level of research and argumentation. Much of what is good in this study comes from what I learned at Hebrew Union College. In particular, I think of Dr. Isaac Jerusalmi, Dr. Stephen Kaufman, Dr. Richard Sarason, Dr. Edward Goldman, Dr. Nili Fox and Dr. David Weisberg—faculty who have contributed immensely to my academic formation. It has been a rare and priceless privilege to have had the chance to study with them.

Secondly, I must thank my colleagues and the students at the Emanuel University of Oradea. They have contributed greatly to my spiritual and academic development. I am indebted to Mr. Iosif Curta, Calin Galchis and especially to Corneliu Jitareanu, who were instrumental in helping change the dissertation to the format required by Gorgias Press. I would also like to thank the Gorgias Press staff, and in particular to Dr. George Kiraz, for their unending patience in bringing this project to completion.

But my greatest appreciation is due to my family, and especially to my wife Carmen. This project required many years of sacrifice and she is the one person in my life who embodied this sacrificial spirit. Without her love and support, this dissertation would never have been possible. For the many years when daddy had to spend time writing rather than playing with you, Chris and Adrian, I want to say thank you! In His providence God has graciously surrounded me with these wonderful people.
