

CONTENTS.

	CHAPTER I.	PAGE
THE TOWNSFOLK		1
Conservatism of the Egyptian Middle Classes.—The Cairo Tradesman.—Shops.—Streets.—By-lanes.—Houses.—Courts.—Rooms.—Daily Life.—Visiting.—Harim.—Feminine Beauty.—Position of Women in Mohammedan Countries.—Meals.—Feasting in the Middle Ages.—Use of Wine.—Poetry and Music.—Ismâd the Poet.—Ibrahim El-Mosly.—Mukhârrik.—Music in the Present Day.—Modern Festivities.—Marriage.—Public Festivals.—Moharram.—Ashûra.—The Return of the Pilgrims.—The Mûid Ea-Neby.—The Hasaneyn.—Bazaars on the Great Night of the Hasaneyn.—Other Feasts.—The Holy Carpet.—The Mahmal.—The Night of the Drop.—Character of Egyptian Amusements.
	CHAPTER II.
THE COUNTRYFOLK		47
Egypt an Agricultural Country.—Conditions of Cultivation.—The Annual Inundation.—Canals.—Corvée Labour.—Water-engines.—Shadûfs, Sâkiyehs, and Steam-pumps.—The Indebtedness of the Fellâhin.—An Egyptian Calendar.—Character of the Peasant.—Villages.—Peasants' Huts.—The Village Saint.—A Country Town.—Courts of "Justice."—The Copts.—A Coptic Wedding.—Industries.—Daily Life of the Peasants.—The Life of the Women in the Country.—The Bedawis.—The Ababdch.—Their Dress, Tents, Food, Employment, and Character.
	CHAPTER III.
SCHOOL AND MOSQUE		79
Education.—Home and Religious Training.—School.—University of the Azhar.—The Religion of Egypt.—General Character of Islâm.—Dogmas.—Ritual.—Mosques.—The Mosques of 'Amr, of Ibn-Tûlûn, of El-Hâkim.—The Museum of Arab Art in the Mosque of El-Hâkim.—The Mosques of Kalâin and En-Nâsir.—Sultan Hasan.—Kâit-Bey.—Ornamentation of the Interior of Mosques.—Mosaics.—Tiles.—Bronze Work.—Wood Carving.—Kamatlyehs.—Lamps of Enamelled Glass.—Prayers.—Fasting: Ramaddân.—Performance of a Zikr by Darwishes.—Recitations of the entire Korân.
	CHAPTER IV.
THE EUROPEAN ELEMENT		117
European Innovations.—Alexandria.—The Trail of the European throughout the Land.—The European Quarter of Cairo.—The Triumph of Western Customs.—The Work of the ex-Khedive Isma'îl.—Camels & Railways.—The Journey from Cairo to Suez.—Tell el-Maskhûtah.—Pithom-Succoth.—The Route of the Exodus.—The Suez Canal.—Suez.—Lake Timsâh.—Isma'îliâ.—Kantarâh.—Port Sa'îd.—Result of all our Improvements.—Immobility of the Egyptians.—The Present Outlook.—Uselessness of attempting Constitutional Government.
	CHAPTER V.
EPILOGUE		133
General Considerations.—The Prime Mistake in the Present System to be found in the Condition of the Women.—Disastrous Results of the Vicious Training of Women.—Relations of Men and Women degraded by Early Inculcation of Vicious Views of each other's Requirements.—The Lack of the Influence of a Lady.—Slight Prospect of Improvement, so long as Islâm is the Religion of Egypt.—Education of the Women must be the First Step.

