
Contents

Introduction 1

- 1 Mercantile Credit in Britain and America, 1700–1860 13
- 2 A “System of Espionage”: The Origins of the Credit-Reporting Firm 36
- 3 Character, Capacity, Capital: How to Be Creditworthy 80
- 4 Jewish Merchants and the Struggle over Transparency 119
- 5 Growth, Competition, Legitimacy: Credit Reporting in the Late Nineteenth Century 139
- 6 From Competition to Cooperation: The Birth of the Credit Man, 1890–1920 174

Epilogue: Business Credit Reporting in the Twenty-First Century 201

Notes 211

Index 269

A Culture of Credit

