

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Map of France, 1786	xii
Introduction	1
 I. The Assembly of Notables: February–May 1787, November–December 1788
1. Paths to Political Consciousness: The Notables in the First Assembly, February–May 1787	11
2. Privilege, Property, and Participation: A Mutation in Elite Political Culture	34
3. The Society of Orders at Its Demise: The Vision of the Elite at the End of the Ancien Régime	61
 II. The Media and the Public: Networks of Information, Opinion, Instruction
4. Political News as Coded Messages: The Parisian and Provincial Press, 1787–1788	91

5. The Foreign French-Language Press: Gazettes	112
6. The Foreign French-Language Press: Journals of Opinion	125
7. Manuscript Newsletters— Nouvelles à la Main	136
8. Pamphlets and Other Writings: A Network of Political Education and Polemics	167
9. Readers and Reading Sites: The Public and the Network of the Printed and Written Media	194
10. The Verbal, the Visual, and the Festive	208

III. At the Grass Roots

11. “Popular” Pamphlets: Political Messages to the Public	253
12. Can We Hear the Voices of Peasants?	292
13. The Grass Roots: Local Judges and Community Assemblies Speak Out	324
Conclusion	365
Appendix A. Chronology	373
Appendix B. Contemporary Accounts of Fêtes , 1787–1788	377
Notes	383
Index	471

Illustrations follow page 224