This book would not have been possible without the assistance of many people. First and foremost, I would like to thank all the contributors to the volume. Without their work this volume would not have been possible.

I would like to give special thanks to Randy Lundy, whose early support of this project was very important. Although he was unable to see this project to completion, I am grateful for his early and invaluable support.

I am especially grateful to my mānahcikan, Tasha Beeds, not only for her paper but also for editing mine. She also helped in preparing the SSHRC workshop grant application, and played a central role in the fund-raising for the gathering and author readings.

I would like to acknowledge the SSHRC workshop fund, which allowed many of the contributors to gather and share their ideas. I am also thankful to Louise Halfe, who was able to attend the gathering and help inspire us all.

I would like to thank various units and people of Trent University for their support: Department of Indigenous Studies, Graduate Students' Association, Office of the President, Frost Centre, Department of English, Carol Williams, Gzowski College, Canadian Studies, and the Department for International Development. I would also like to thank the Symons Trust Fund for the support to help pay for the indexing of this book. I would also like to thank Rob Kohlmeier, of Wilfrid Laurier University Press, for his assistance in helping the book take its final form.

I would also like to thank several Peterborough businesses for their support as well: the UPS Store, Natas Café, Catalinas, Sam's Place, Dreams of Beans, East City Bakery, Blackhoney, Hi-Ho Silver, Maggie's Eatery, and La Hacienda Restaurante Mexicano.

I would like to thank all of my students from INDG 2480 and INDG 4480 who contributed in various ways, including moderating the panels.

I would also like to thank several of my graduate students who played a key role in assisting. I would like to thank Mara Heiber, who helped with overall logistics. I am deeply indebted to both Christine Sy and Danielle Jeancart, who assisted with formatting the essays and fixing the endnotes.

Finally, I would like to thank Deanna Reder, the editor of the series of which this book is a part. Also, I am very thankful to Lisa Quinn of Wilfrid Laurier University Press, who believed in the book and who was very supportive throughout the process.
