

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We are immensely grateful to all those who attended “How Shall We Teach These?,” the workshop staged at Simon Fraser University in February 2014, and who provided us with invaluable feedback that contributed to the shape and content of this anthology: Caitlin Barter, Tracy Bear, Lesley Belleau, Kristina Fagan Bidwell, Blake Bilmer, Miriam Brown-Spiers, Tenille Campbell, Warren Cariou, Adar Charlton, Francesca Courtade, Lindsey Cornum, Michelle Coupal, Jonathan Dewar, Renate Eigenbrod, Jo-Ann Episkenew, Jeff Fedoruk, Margery Fee, Marc André Fortin, David Gaertner, Emily Gingera, Allison Hargreaves, Sarah Henzi, Sarah Hickey, Gabrielle Hill, Roberta Holden, Dallas Hunt, Natalie Knight, Curran Jacobs, Brendan McCormack, Daniel Morley Johnson, Daniel Heath Justice, Michele Lacombe, Janey Lew, Hartmut Lutz, Keavy Martin, Tara Masaki, Sophie McCall, Sam McKegney, Ashley Morford, Laura Moss, Alex Muir, Dory Nason, Lisa Quinn, Deena Rymhs, Angela Semple, June Scudeler, Szu Shen, Isabelle St. Amand, Mike Taylor, Chris Teuton, Renae Watchman, Saylesh Wesley, Greg Younging, Lisa Taylor, and Angela Van Essen.

In addition, we would like to thank the members of the SFU MATE class, who, in ENGL 844, reviewed this anthology and made many productive suggestions. Thanks to Marina Brewer, Beth Carson Fehr, Dylan Gant, Katie Keller, Allison Kilgannon, Laura MacPherson, Matthew Metford, Cathleen Peters, Rebecca Taylor, Jennifer Thompson Whitcher, and Maria Zappone. Thanks also to past MATE students who inspired this work, most particularly Shirley Burdon, Ann Marie McGrath, Karine Guezalova, and Deborah Stellingwerff.

At Bishop’s University, we would like to thank the members of the ENG 358: Approaches to Indigenous Literatures class, which tested the early version of this volume: Dylan Beland, Sean Gallagher, David Guignon, Shannon Jackson, Sarah Legge, Aislinn May, Tess Metcalfe, Matthew M. Nutbrown, Ashley Shinder, and Katherine Warriner.

We would also like to acknowledge the publishers who attended the event: Lisa Quinn of Wilfrid Laurier UP; Greg Younging of Theytus Books; and Kevin Williams of Talon Books. We thank Simon Fraser University for allowing us to host the Workshop in February 2014. We acknowledge the support of our respective university affiliations, Simon Fraser University and Bishop’s University. Specifically, we would like to thank SFU’s Vice President Academic and Provost, Jonathan Driver, and SFU's Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, John Craig, for their support and encouragement. We would like to thank the SFU's Department of First Nations Studies, specifically Chair Eldon Yellowhorn and Department Manager Lorraine Yam, for providing an immense amount of administrative support. Thanks to the Department of English for funding the Graduate Student Mentorship breakfast. Thanks also to Bishop's University's Senate Research Council Travel Grant, Senate Research Council Publications Grant, and Experiential Learning Internship Grant, which provided funding so that we could hire Curran Jacobs to complete preliminary work on the manuscript and to allow two Bishop's students to participate in this groundbreaking event. Special thanks to the University of Manitoba's Dr. Renate Eigenbrod, whose memory continues to inspire us. Also thanks to the Centre for Creative Writing and Oral Culture, specifically the amazing work of Canada Research Chair Dr. Warren Cariou. Many thanks to the University of British Columbia's Canada Research Chair Dr. Daniel Heath Justice and the Department of First Nations and Indigenous Studies. Thanks also to the amazing team from Full Circle Performance, which annually puts on the Talking Stick Festival—specifically Margo Kane and Tanja Dixon-Warren. We would also like to express our gratitude to visual artist Sonny Assu for allowing us to use his image for our cover.

And thank you in particular to the SFU community, including Brett Romans, Maureen Curtin, Bev Neufeld, Costa Dedegikas, Andrea Creamer, Am Johal and the Vancity Office for Community Engagement, William Lindsey and the Office for Aboriginal Peoples, Dr. Sophie McCall and her two classes of graduate students in the Department of English, including the MATE program, and students Ashley Morford, Natalie Knight, Blake Bilmer, and Karen Johnson.

We are grateful to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada for the Connections Grant that allowed us to stage the Workshop in February 2014 and to cover the cost of the permissions related to the anthology; such funding is crucial to seeing these endeavours come to fruition. Special thanks to the team at Wilfrid Laurier University Press, including the copy editor, as well as for the careful editorial attention of Dr. June Scudeler and Melanie Tutino.

Linda Morra would also like to express her love for her friends and family and thank them for all their support, especially her parents. Deanna Reder would like to thank her sons Mischa, Eli, and Sam, and in particular her partner, Eric Davis, for their unwavering support.
