

Table of Contents

Foreword, Neil Besner / ix
Biographical Note / xi
Introduction, rob mclennan / xiii

(bluegrass) / 1
(for Men Against Rape) / 2
When I went down to the shore at dawn / 3
My father said / 4
Though we all sink back together / 5
The back townships acquiesce in the rain / 6
(guide to executive suicide) / 7
A chickadee / 7
I wanted to see a girl naked / 8
(Bronwen Wallace) / 9
I worship our threatened complexity / 10
I am too old & no longer believe / 11
The tiny boat is slowing down / 14
To free me of anecdote / 15
I couldn't write a better poem / 16
Spearing pineapple rings from a can with a stick / 17
Where wings once caught poor sinners like us / 18
Do not tell me what is great / 19
(April 1970) / 20
He was the skins of a few prides / 21
There is a library of strangers in Dublin / 22
First my first language nonsense / 23
Where #7's survey tangent / 24
If I have to hear one more time / 25
Me & Morrisseau were both abused as kids / 26

It is not you it is the door & then the phone / 27
 People are like pens / 28
 My just-washed hair loosening & lightening / 29
 Don't be discouraged by the prosaic origins of poems / 31
 What topsoil tells the hand the hand tells a pencil / 32
 Boats revere words / 32
 A woman takes off her bombshell / 33
 (James Reaney) / 34
 To listen they lean forward kids do / 35
 (the alphabet) / 36
 (Praxia) / 37
 A flower no I mean one who unplucked flows / 41
 For once for once upon for once open opening / 44
 To pace a pleasing moiety-line / 45
 The Philadelphia Wireman was probably a woman / 47
 A book in its folios is akin to firewood / 48
 Error is Character / 49
 Again each second the pulse / 50
 Light entered my black song / 51
 (bluegrass) / 52
 I am roaming the streets / 53

Afterword: "To See It All & Not Be Weary," Phil Hall / 57

Acknowledgements / 69