

Notes on contributors

Sara Ashencaen Crabtree is Professor of Social and Cultural Diversity and co-convener of the Women's Academic Network at Bournemouth University. She is the author of the first European book on Islam and Social Work (2008).

Elena Cabiati is Lecturer and Researcher in Social Work at the Catholic University of Milan and Brescia. She teaches Methodology of Social Work and Intercultural Social Work. Her main research interests are intercultural social work and social work education. She has worked as social worker and middle manager in child protection services.

Valentina Calcaterra is Lecturer and Researcher in Social Work at the Catholic University of Milan. She teaches Methodology of Social Work and Participatory Methods in Social Work. She has interests in community work, child protection and relational social work. She has worked as a social worker and independent advocate.

Julie Christie is the International Service Manager for the Dementia Centre, Hammond Care, an established international centre for research and education. She is Visiting Research Fellow at the University of Edinburgh and Adjunct Lecturer at the University of New South Wales, Australia.

Mastoureh Fathi is a Marie Skłodowska-Curie fellow at the Institute for Social Science in the 21st Century at University College Cork, Ireland. Her research revolves around everyday experiences of migration with a focus on intersectionality, gender and class in migration processes, identity, home-making and belonging in diaspora and the importance of objects in displacement.

Fabio Folgheraiter is Professor of Social Work at the Catholic University of Milan and Brescia where he is manager of the Bachelor's, Master's and PhD programmes in Social Work. He is the founder of the relational social work method, coordinator of the Relational Social Work Research Centre and editor of the journal Relational Social Work. He has published widely and internationally on relational social work.

Rachel Fyson is Professor of Social Work and Director of the Centre for Social Work at the University of Nottingham. She has researched widely in the area of intellectual disability policy and practice.

Vanessa Heaslip is Associate Professor of Nursing at Bournemouth University. She has researched peoples marginalised in society, especially the Roma population.

Richard Heslop teaches Criminology at Bournemouth University and the Open University. He served for 28 years as a police officer in West Yorkshire Police before joining academia.

Maggie Hutchings is Associate Professor of Transformative Education in the Department of Social Sciences and Social Work at Bournemouth University. Her research interests focus on practice-based education, interprofessional learning and widening participation with care leavers and other disadvantaged groups.

Hyun-Joo Lim is Senior Lecturer in Sociology at Bournemouth University. She has an interest in transnational families and migrant mothers.

Jonathan Parker is Professor of Society and Social Welfare at Bournemouth University. He is author of the best-selling book Social Work Practice (Sage, 2017).

Margarete Parrish is Senior Lecturer in Social Work at Bournemouth University.

Bridget Penhale is Reader in Mental Health and Older People at the University of East Anglia. With a professional qualification in social work, she had an extensive career in social work and social work management. In her subsequent academic career she has developed research expertise in elder abuse and adult safeguarding.

Sam Porter is Professor of Nursing Sociology at Bournemouth University. He has research interests in critical realism, palliative care nursing and social theories.

Gabriele Schäfer is Professor in the School of Social Work at the University of Applied Sciences in Bremen/Germany. She is trained as a psychologist and family therapist and has worked in several therapeutic institutions in Auckland, New Zealand.

Peter Szto is Professor of Social Work at the Grace Abbott School of Social Work, University of Nebraska at Omaha. His current research and area of publication focuses on documentary photography as a tool of social research, social welfare development in China, and international social work.

Steve Tee is Professor and Executive Dean of the Faculty of Health and Social Sciences at Bournemouth University. He is a nurse by professional background.