Research in social work

Series editors:

Ian Shaw, National University of Singapore, Singapore and John Gal, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel

The Research in Social Work series, published with the European Social Work Research Association, examines current, progressive and innovative research on social work in Europe. A leading collection for social work academics, researchers and practitioners, it makes a unique contribution to this international field.

The series editors invite proposals for books drawing on original and cutting-edge research and which aim to influence social work academia and practice. They can be contacted through either the office of the European Social Work (info@eswra.org) or Policy Press (pp-info@bristol.ac.uk).

Forthcoming titles in the series:

Jobling, H. (2019) Power and control in social work: An ethnographic account of mental health practice

Devlieghere, J. (2019) Digital technologies and social work: Opportunities and illusions

Nygren, L., Olstedal, S. and White, S. (2019) International social work with families: Comparing contexts and complexities in Europe, Latin America and Australia
