

Contents

List of figures and tables	viii
Notes on contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	1
Kirsi Juhila, Tanja Dall, Christopher Hall and Juliet Koprowska
1 From a collaborative and integrated welfare policy to frontline practices Kirsi Juhila, Suvi Raitakari, Dorte Caswell, Tanja Dall and Monika Wilińska	9
2 Examining talk and interaction in meetings of professionals and service users Christopher Hall and Tanja Dall	33
3 How chairs use the pronoun 'we' to guide participation in rehabilitation team meetings Tanja Dall and Dorte Caswell	63
4 Working within frames and across boundaries in core group meetings in child protection Christopher Hall and Stef Slembrouck	83
5 Alignment and service user participation in low-threshold meetings with people using drugs Suvi Raitakari, Johanna Ranta and Sirpa Saario	115
6 Sympathy and micropolitics in return-to-work meetings Pia H. Bülow and Monika Wilińska	141
7 Negotiating epistemic rights to knowledge concerning service users' recent histories in mental health meetings Kirsi Juhila, Lisa Morriss and Suvi Raitakari	171
8 Relational agency and epistemic justice in initial child protection conferences Juliet Koprowska	197
Conclusion	225
Kirsi Juhila, Tanja Dall, Christopher Hall and Juliet Koprowska
Postscript	241
Index	247