

Acknowledgements

First, we would like to express our gratitude to our partners, Lore, Charlie and Abi, for their support while we put this collection together. A huge thanks is owed to Rebecca Tomlinson and Freya Trand for their support throughout the project – we know we were not always easy to deal with. Alongside Rebecca and Freya, we cannot forget Angela Gage for her enthusiasm and support as well as everyone else who made this possible from Policy Press! Perhaps most importantly, though, the main thank you for this book is owed to the contributors. We reached out to each one of them in the midst of a global pandemic with what must have seemed a rather random and unusual idea. Thank you for hearing us out and being a part of the project; we are forever grateful. Adam and Craig would like to extend a special thanks to Sarah Pemberton for enabling us to realise our vision and her unwavering support. John Bahadur Lamb and Max Hart for suffering endless book chats in the pub; we hope we didn't spoil the pints – cheers lads! A consistent source of inspiration and motivation within this process was, of course, Tim Gill. Finally, thank you to our colleagues at our respective universities, Birmingham City University and Staffordshire University, for giving us the time and space to work on the project.
