

List of Figures

1.1	The limits of forcing functions	13
2.1	Our digital responsibility framework	39
3.1	A new regulatory approach	58
3.2	Multiple actors with responsibilities	65
3.3	Putting profit first	67
3.4	The impact of responsabilisation on users	70
3.5	Pre-set responsibilities in business models	72
3.6	The flow of responsibility is multi-directional	76
3.7	The sites of the state, the market and the individual	78
4.1	UN Global Compact	82
4.2	Unclear responsibilities	84
4.3	Digital assistance	85
4.4	One size does not fit all	87
4.5	The COVID-19 context	93
4.6	Assuming responsibilities	99
4.7	Bureaucratic complexity	100
4.8	Responsibilities in bridge building	104
4.9	A new framework	105
5.1	Digital census	111
5.2	The need for community response	112
5.3	Trust – a key challenge	115
5.4	Types of outreach	119
5.5	Targeted census support	120
5.6	Technology barriers to overcome	122
5.7	Digital innovation needs inclusive responsibilities	127
5.8	Dispersed responsibilities	129

5.9	Real relationships and digital responsibilities	130
6.1	Responsibility actions	138
6.2	Distributed responsibilities	143
6.3	Responsibility lacunas	146
6.4	The limits of forcing functions	150
6.5	Resources and business models	154
7.1	The relational aspects of our digital responsibilities framework	160