

Notes on Contributors

Evan Easton-Calabria is Senior Researcher and Fellow at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy and the Feinstein International Center, Tufts University. She also holds positions as a Senior Technical Advisor at the Red Cross Red Crescent Climate and as a Research Associate at the Refugee Studies Centre, University of Oxford. Her research focuses on the structure of humanitarianism and development, including refugee self-reliance, digitalisation, urbanisation and localisation. She previously worked at Royal Holloway, University of London, and the University of Oxford, from where she also holds a Masters and PhD in International Development. She is the author of over 85 publications, including work on trust and digital responsibility, refugees in the digital economy.

Iida Käyhkö is a PhD candidate at the Information Security Group at Royal Holloway, University of London. Her research examines insecurities experienced by political diaspora communities. She has carried out in-depth ethnographic research with the Kurdish community in the UK since 2018, and published on the topic in The Guardian, Race & Class and Novara Media.