
Acknowledgments

I would like to thank the following people who read and commented on parts of my manuscript, along with those who provided me with other invaluable support as part of university life: Simon Choat, Sam Chambers, Janique Dubois, Elizabeth Vlossak, Melissa Williams, Chris Holman, Eva H.D., Leah Bradshaw, Tom Malleson, Jordan Brennan, Marian Bredin, Peter MacLeod, and George Wooten. I'm also fortunate to have departmental colleagues who are committed to a program in which political theory flourishes and agree that we're all better for it. My institution, King's University College at Western University, provided funding for two very thoughtful research assistants, Mick Kunze and Jeremy Marks. The team at UBC Press has been consistently professional and should be commended for its commitment to publishing critical approaches in and beyond political theory. While writing this book, my parents and sister remained steadfast, as always, in their support. The finishing touches were completed during a time when my father was very ill. I regret losing him prior to the book appearing in print. Finally, from Elizabeth and Roger I receive the delights of a shared life. I'm especially thankful for the fun and boundless inspiration that they provide in a time when mainstream politics seems to be even more dispiriting than usual.