

Acknowledgments

This book is the product of a collective effort and we have many people to thank. First and foremost, we extend our thanks to the various contributors for their enthusiastic participation in the project. We would also like to express our gratitude to UBC Press for their invaluable assistance in the publication process and for helping to find an audience for this book. Special thanks are due to Randy Schmidt and Ann Macklem for their outstanding support at each step. A workshop on working-class voting behaviour and political representation was held at the annual meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association in 2022, and we are grateful to the conference organizers for facilitating this. We must also thank the three anonymous reviewers who carefully read the manuscript and offered numerous invaluable suggestions that resulted in a much improved final product. We greatly appreciate the crucial funding assistance provided by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada and the Canadian-American Center at the University of Maine. Finally, we thank the exceptional research assistants at Bishop's University who helped to bring this book to fruition, Christina Lépine and Regan Simpson.
