

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Over the past decade, assistance to this editorial project has been generously extended by numerous individuals and institutions. The Bancroft Library of the University of California, Berkeley, has repeatedly been our benefactor. Its Franklin Walker and Frank Norris Collections contain essential data available nowhere else; the late Director James D. Hart and Anthony Bliss, Curator of Books, were our constant friends in every respect. The California State Library in Sacramento was also especially cooperative; California Section Librarian Sibylle Zemitis performed favors for which we will forever be grateful. Grants from the American Philosophical Society, the Bibliographical Society of America, and the Florida State University Research Foundation made possible travel to these and other research collections. The National Endowment for the Humanities provided subvention for the publication of this edition. Individual scholars who made their contributions include: Jesse S. Crisler, Robert C. Leitz, III, Richard Allan Davison, James B. Stronks, Don L. Cook, Donald Pizer, Don Graham, Joel Myerson, Lawrence Berkove, Benjamin F. Fisher, IV, Gary Scharnhorst, Stanley Wertheim, David Bevington, David Teague, Craig Westman, Lucia Kinsaul, Gwendolyn Jones, Amy Johnson, Charles Duncan, Sheryl Nadler, Eugene Crook, and David Johnson. The late Sal Noto and the late Oscar Lewis unstintingly shared their knowledge of fin de siècle San Francisco with us. Earle Labor, I. Milo Shepard, and Jeanne C. Reesman fully merit our hearty thanks for good fellowship along the way. It was a pleasure to receive editorial direction and assistance from Carole Le Faivre-Rochester of The American Philosophical Society.

The frontispiece portraits of Norris were reproduced from Bailey Millard's "A Significant Literary Life," Outwest, 18 (January 1903): 49 (Volume 2) and 51 (Volume 1). Courtesy of the California State Library, Sacramento.

J. R. M.
D. K. B.

