

Acknowledgments

I wish to thank the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, the American Philosophical Society, the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities of the University of Edinburgh, and Indiana University for fellowship support while researching and writing this book. I am indebted to the staffs of the British Library, the Public Record Office (London and Edinburgh), the Guildhall Library, the University of London Library, the Staatsarchiv Hamburg, and the Indiana University Library for their assistance.

Very early in my research Professor D. C. Coleman, in a chance meeting in London, encouraged me by telling me that I was on the right track. David Spaeder and Professor Emeritus L. L. Waters made useful suggestions to early drafts of the manuscript. The readers for the American Philosophical Society were Professor Jeremy Black of the University of Durham and Dr. Gordon Jackson of the University of Strathclyde, United Kingdom. I am exceedingly grateful for their thorough and constructive critique of every datum and interpretation.

Debbie Chase typed the initial manuscript, and Beth Olson edited and prepared it for submission to the press. Steven T. Duke prepared the figures. Elke and Greg Rogers, and Eric Hender assisted in reading galley and page proof. Susan M. Babbitt, Assistant Editor, and Carole Le Faivre-Rochester, Associate Editor, American Philosophical Society, edited and prepared the manuscript for publication with skill, talent, and tact. However, I am solely responsible for the book and its errors.

I am particularly thankful to my old and dear friends, Joseph Breu and Professor Aron Rodrigue. Aron's patience, wisdom, and faith in me were critical to the book's completion. Joe re-read every word and repeatedly challenged every idea and interpretation in the manuscript. Because of him, it is a better book. My beloved wife, Barbara, listened patiently to every word, every idea, and every interpretation. In all this, we were constantly comforted by the companionship of Baby, Fluffie, and Tortie.
