

Tables

- 3.1. Number of schools featuring degree programs in liberal arts fields, 2009 31
- 3.2. Number of schools featuring degree programs in languages and literature, 2009 42
- 4.1. Peer-reviewed academic journals launched in 2008, by subject and percent interdisciplinary 62
- 4.2. Journals launched in 2008 by type of interdisciplinarity 68
- 5.1. Citation patterns across broad scientific fields 81
- 5.2. Citation patterns within the social sciences and professional fields 82
- 5.3. Diffusion of terms and concepts in the humanities and social sciences 86
- 5.4. Homeland security research centers, institutes, and laboratories at Pennsylvania State University 94
- 6.1. Diffusion rates of top-cited papers versus all articles 109
- 6.2. Lag time for citations to articles published in education journals between 1990 and 2000 117
- 8.1. Relationship between American studies, African American studies, and women's studies programs 174
- 8.2. Trends in the chartering effect of interdisciplinary studies programs 175
- 8.3. Citations to articles in American Quarterly, by subject area of citing journal 180
- 8.4. Citations to articles in American Quarterly and three comparison journals, by subject area of citing journal 181
- 9.1. Bachelor's degrees received in disciplinary and applied fields of study, 2011 200
- 9.2. Number of specialized degree offerings for disciplines and applied fields, 2011 205
- 9.3. Test score performance for interdisciplinary students 207

